THE FACING PROJECT is a community storytelling project that intends to bring awareness about human rights issues and assets of a community to inspire social action (facingproject.com). The Dayton stories illustrate the outcomes of our shared humanity, the desire to build community with one another, and to share stories of neighborhoods to inspire continued work for justice.

JOIN US in celebrating the stories of Dayton community members and the visualization of these stories following the Department of Art and Design Horvath Awards on the evening of the Brother Joseph W. Stander Symposium.
