Vocation

Today's readings raise issues of honesty, integrity, and "right relationship" with God. How do we move into more of a "right" or authentic relationship with God? Perhaps by pursuing the questions of our vocational journey, who am I created by God to be and what am I called to do by God?

Put another way, "The place God calls you to is the place where your deep gladness and the world's deep hunger meet." (Frederick Buechner)

How do we get to that place? Some hints: Be still; listen. Listen so that you can hear that still voice that whispers the truth to you. Spend time with people you admire and respect. Follow your passion(s) in ways that make the world a better place. And encourage others in their journey.

One way to encourage incoming first year UD students in their journey is through Callings. The Callings summer program is a tremendous opportunity for incoming first year students to explore their own calling, their vocation as a student, and ways that we learn, lead, serve and pray at UD. Callings integrates elements of a retreat, leadership development, community engagement and service, and prayer into a four day experience. Two sessions are offered in July. We are seeking student leaders for summer 2014. Selected students enroll in a mini course, Christian Leadership Development for Spring 2014, and help to plan Callings. Information and leader applications can be found on the Callings website, at pcl.udayton.edu. Applications are due October 7. Questions? Contact Maria Ollier Burkett at mburkett1@udayton.edu, 229-3997, or Elizabeth Montgomery, montgomerye1@udayton.edu, 229-3993.
