Exhibit Poster: Visualizing Neighborhood Narratives (Book Designs)

Lucy Bratton

Taylor Wilson

Follow this and additional works at: https://ecommons.udayton.edu/facing_marketing

eCommons Citation

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Facing Dayton: Neighborhood Narratives at eCommons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Facing Dayton: Materials to Invite Engagement by an authorized administrator of eCommons. For more information, please contact frice1@udayton.edu, mschlangen1@udayton.edu.
Senior graphic design students were paired with a community member’s story that captures the experience of living in Dayton and the challenges or advantages that go along with it. Following several preparatory activities, students met one-on-one with their storyteller, an experience that furthered their connection to community and inspired them to create impactful book designs intended to bring poetic justice to their subjects and life to their stories. Through awareness outlets such as “Facing Dayton: Visualizing Neighborhood Narratives” communities can come together to discover new solutions to the problems of intolerance and indifference.