Let It Begin With Us...

Recently at our Table of Plenty we had a discussion on peace: a possibility or a fantasy? The 30 participants were faculty, staff and students including several international students. Dialogue questions included: What are the hidden scars and turmoil in peaceful times? What does your faith teach about peace? What does peace look like to you? The discussions at each table differed yet were very similar. One international student at my table stated that peace needs to begin at home, in our own communities. We need to get along with each other first and from there spread out to the world.

The Table of Plenty discussion luncheons bring us together for a little over an hour and during that time we discuss current topics. We bring to the table ourselves, which includes our faith, our culture and life experiences and we walk away with an insight into the faith, culture and life experiences of others who face the same life situations that the topic stirred. It is through such group discussion of current events that the peace we envision can begin. As the student stated, it starts in our homes and also in our community here at the university.

Mahatma Gandhi reminds us "You must be the change you wish to see in the world." Please join us in future conversations by watching for the announcements of our Table of Plenty discussions in the Faithful Flyer, on the Campus Ministry website and on flyers posted around campus.
