

4-22-2021

Becoming Pro-Mysterion: Embracing a Future of Mercy for All in Romans 11

Rachael Griggs
University of Dayton, griggsr1@udayton.edu

Follow this and additional works at: https://ecommons.udayton.edu/grad_showcase

Recommended Citation

Griggs, Rachael, "Becoming Pro-Mysterion: Embracing a Future of Mercy for All in Romans 11" (2021).
Graduate Student Showcase. 18.
https://ecommons.udayton.edu/grad_showcase/18

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Graduate Academic Affairs at eCommons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Graduate Student Showcase by an authorized administrator of eCommons. For more information, please contact frice1@udayton.edu, mschlangen1@udayton.edu.

Becoming Pro-Mysterion: Embracing a Future of Mercy for All in Romans 11

Rachael Griggs • Religious Studies Department • University of Dayton

- This paper is an exegesis of St. Paul's allegory of the olive tree within the framework of present-day tragedies caused by antisemitism
- Paul's revelation of God's cosmic plan of salvation asks Jesus's followers to become pro-mysterion: to embrace in faith God's redemptive plan for all
- The damaging belief that Christianity has replaced Judaism is called supersessionism
- God's love the Jewish people is eternal

