Throughout our lives
at the university
the memorabilia compiles, reminding us of good times:
salty tears,
both happy and sad,
quiet contemplation
in the silence of a dusky hour, and concentration
for study, for people.

All this builds our ambitions, augments our hopes,
expands our dreams.
And when tomorrow becomes today, we realize more than any book could tell us the importance of our expectations.

the organizations day

Organization Day marked the beginning of the year's activities, and every club had its people out . . . it was recruit all the volunteers you could. Clubs from every possible hole in the wall converged on the plaza. Between all the tables laden with displays and people walking here, there and everywhere, you would think UD had more clubs and organizations than people. But, when you're made an offer to go to Kentucky with the Appalachia Club or promised far away places by the International Club, who could refuse?

Summertime on the Rive Gauche came to the campus early in September when local artists and craftsmen displayed their work on the library lawn. Exhibits of woodcarvings, jewelry, sculptures, flower arrangements, pottery and, of course, paintings were scattered about in shady areas along the paths. Students who browsed under the trees found artists eager to talk about their creations. Most of the prices were a bit too steep for student budgets, but no one could beat the price of admission — free . . .

campus carnival

Imagine a bearded man eating a swirl of cotton candy; couples whirling around a ferris wheel; tossing ping pong balls for bottles of booze. The image created is the annual Campus Carnival. Delayed on day due to a deluge from heaven, it offered computer horse racing, Black Jack dealers from Vegas and honest-to-goodness rides for thrills and whatever. Clubs worked diligently designing games that supposedly no one could win. But math geniuses and ultra-athletes triumphed and girls received early birthday presents of stuffed animals. Childhood revisited on a brisk fall night . . .

Welcome home, Chicago! On your return to the Arena for the third time since '68, we cheered you, swayed with your rhythms, danced to your beat. You gave us intricate instrumentals, an unbeatable brass section, a little jazz, a driving beat, and SATURDAY IN THE PARK — COLOUR MY WORLD — MAKE ME SMILE — DIALOGUE — I'VE BEEN SEARCHING SO LONG — FEELING STRONGER EVERY DAY. And that unreal climax — a serpentine balloon, growing, iridescent . . . Chicago!

With a little help from her friends in the Afro American Society, the UD Marching Band, and the Flyerettes, business major Julia Bryant out-polled five other candidates to be crowned Homecoming queen. She was escorted by Reggie Shyne and her court (the competition) — clockwise, Janice Ferri, Joan Szymantki, Cindy Wallitsch, Marita Faletti, and Elizabeth Borton.

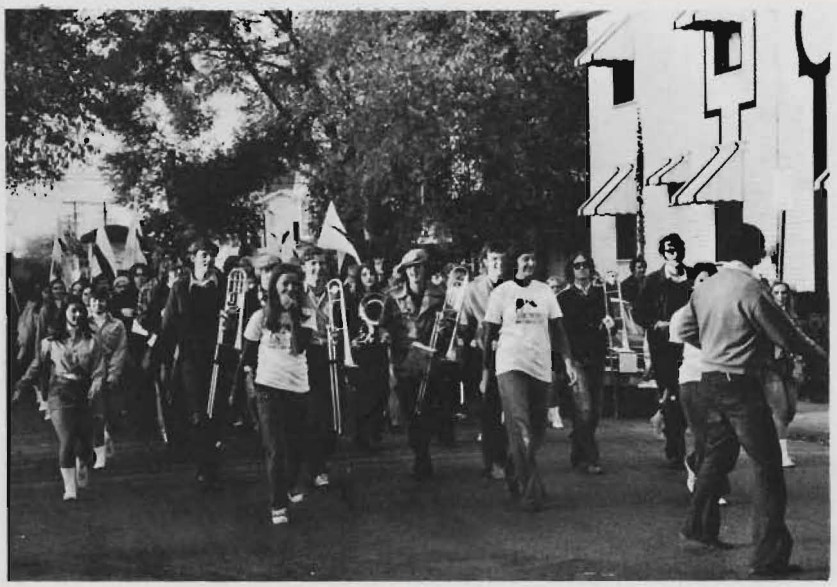
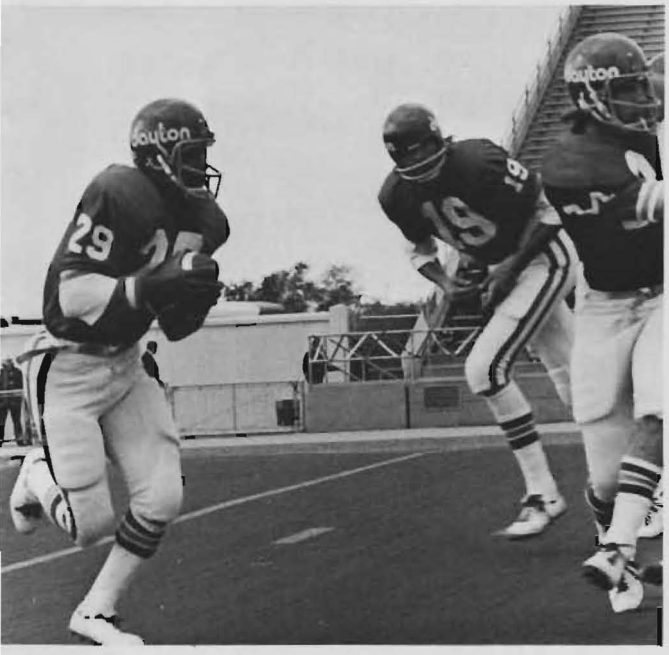
When the chicken wire and crumpled tissue paper are unearthed, a Homecoming parade is just hours away. Getting ready for it takes one long all-nighter. Between the bouts of the World Series, paint splashing and potato chip munchies, it's a wonder any floats were built. But they were and the parade did happen . . . winding over campus avenues and through the streets of the ghetto . . .



The parade wasn't elaborate or flashy or long, but there was International Club's un-seaworthy ship and WVUD's old-time portable radio, both prize winners.

The Flyers were no prize winners, however, as they lost to Toledo 38-29. But the fans didn't seem to mind, there were so many old friends to see . . .

. . . and the flyer fans



even when you lose

Even though the game went in the hopper, Homecoming day had something going for it . . . like Tom Vosberg's record-breaking passing for three TDs . . . over 2,000 alumni . . . the UD Marching Band and the Coeds . . . Queen Julia's crowning . . . bottled spirits to warm the body against unseasonably cold weather . . . and a mass boogie in Wampler's Ballroom at the end of the day, complete with two bands, several thousand students, gallons of booze and — do you remember? — snow.

He doesn't belong to the University of Dayton anymore. Yet he's the same old Smitty. Rubberband on wrist. Cheering when he was on the bench. Hustling down the court. Playing an enthusiastic game.

Former great guard for the Flyers, Donald Smith was playing for the Philadelphia 76'ers at the Arena. He was one-for-three from the field, three-for-four from the foul line, and managed to come up with one steal. Every time he checked into the game, he was met with applause from the 1,423 people in the stands. When he scored his only bucket the crowd cheered louder than they had all night. That was their Smitty on the floor. The same guy who played so well against Notre Dame and UCLA. The fact his team beat Houston 112-107 wasn't really important.

But Smitty was not pleased with his performance.

I DIDN'T REALLY FEEL AT HOME FOR SOME REASON. I WASN'T SHARP. YOU'VE GOT TO REALLY FIGHT AND SCRAP TO GET THROUGH THEM IN THE PROS. THE PROBLEM IS THAT I AM SO LITTLE. I'LL LEARN. I'D BETTER LEARN.

That's the same old Smitty.

Jeanne Dixon: a wife . . . a mother to over 30 foster children . . . a devout Roman Catholic . . . a self-proclaimed modern-day prophetess. She isn't at all what you might expect. She is not commercial or brash or pessimistic. She talks quickly, in reserved tones, about politics, religion, economics, the past, the future, life, God, spiritual unity throughout the world.

A SENSE OF TIMING IS WOVEN INTO THE TAPESTRY OF OUR LIVES THAT AIDS THE SPIRITUAL AND HUMAN PROGRESS THAT MOVES THE WORLD.

After you entered the Ballroom, you felt over-powered by the colors found in the costumes being paraded around. The aura of faraway places invaded KU with the International Tea. Allowing for minor technical difficulties, which could be ignored while sampling a seemingly endless number of exotic teas, the program stormed on with dancers from all lands. Amazingly enough, some gentlemen were caught standing on chairs when a belly dancer entered the spotlight . . .

Beer has replaced the sacks full of candy, a dark room full of loud, raucous music and lights and shadows has supplanted the twilight race through the streets, getting treats or playing tricks. But the urge to become Cleopatra for just one evening ... a clown ... a witch ... a hobo ... perhaps Mother Nature herself is still strong. Just to be anything but ourselves for a little while. Disguised behind a pair of shades, layers of make-up, dated fashions and a touch of ingenuity, we can make other eras and other relationships become real — just for one evening. It won't last much longer: the beer runs out and the music stops and the sun rises, banishing the ghosts and goblins for another year.

for xenia

Bob Hope and an entourage of celebrities from stage, screen, space and football — most of whom are native Ohioans — converged on the Arena for the benefit of Dayton's neighbor to the east, Xenia, which was devastated earlier in the year by a tornado. The show raised close to $100,000 to help rebuild Xenia. Nancy Wilson, Kenny Roberts and Maureen McGovern were among the performers.

He came out with that wide smile on his face and an urge to get everybody up and moving. As he broke into "Signed, Sealed and Delivered" on the synthesizer, his head moved back and forth in that familiar rhythm, and the audience moved with him. Through the tranquil "My Cherie Amour" to his oldie "Uptight." From the harmonica to the piano to the drums. Sometimes fun, sometimes profound. Always open, down-to earth, honest. Talented, versatile, a child prodigy at 12 — one almost forgets that the shades aren't part of the costume.

At one time or another during our lives, we experience moments when we are not quite sure whether we can retain our sanity — or whether we are even sane at all. The theatre's first production of the season, Edward Albee's "A Delicate Balance," is a study of the balance between sanity and madness — and how that balance can be easily tipped.

The dark comedy explored the loss of love in modern life and the resulting loss of touch with reality. The script is scathingly humorous as it shows the cocktail party facade worn by the characters. When they are finally unmasked to each other, the balance shifts and is lost. No one is hurt but something in each dies in the confrontation.

The theatre department did an abrupt about-face for its second production of the year, which was the very un-serious comedy "Three Men on a Horse" by John Holm and George Abbott. Capturing the nostalgic humor of the '30's, the play follows the escapades of a meek greeting card writer and his involvement with hoods as they began betting on the horses. As Director Dr. Charles Schultz explained, the show "deals with ridiculous characters, doing ridiculous things in a ridiculous way, but they take it all very seriously." No depth — just fun.

The lively Restoration comedy "She Stoops To Conquer" was presented in February to sellout crowds. The play concerns the actions of Kate Hardcastle, who "stoops" to portraying a barmaid to "conquer" the heart of Charles Marlowe. "The Mistakes of a Night" proves to be an accurate subtitle as Kate's brother Tony works his mischief in order to marry his cousin Constance off to Marlowe's friend, Hastings. The older generation of Hardcastles remain the butt of all the jokes until the ending is finally resolved by the wise Sir Charles. Sound confusing? Well, at least the crew members knew what was going on . . .

The crew worked long hours preparing the delicate silhouettes that composed the only scenery for the play. Accompanied by 18th century music performed on a moog synthesizer, furniture glided in from the wings as the actors made their entrances. Their coordinated efforts drew applause for all four performances of this sprightly romp.

Director Larry Selka and Technical designer Darryl Anderson tried to achieve a genuine feeling of Restoration theatre through the "false-proscenium" set. Two chandeliers, executed by Mr. Anderson and borrowed from Ohio State for the performances, and twin cherubim over the stage, helped both actors and audience enter the spirit of fun.

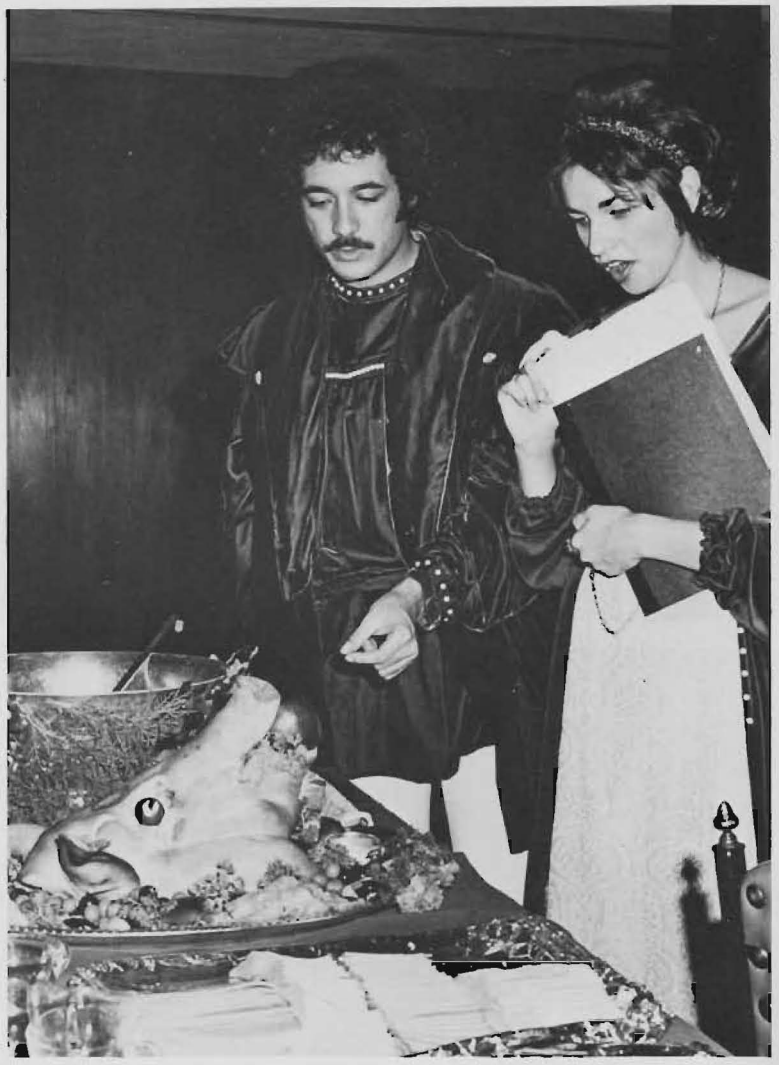
For UD students, Christmas arrives in big yellow buses full of tumble-jumbled coats and mittens and laughing, smiling faces. Children and senior citizens mix with their student hosts to brighten the season and bring the real Christmas on campus. Tinsel, holly, some fluff stolen from an angel's fair head, and a proud glowing tree add the touch of Yuletide spirit. Some students adopted a child or senior citizen while others provided their talents to skits and carol-singing. And an old gent (at least, he looked old) in a well-worn red and white suit stayed for awhile . . .



Featuring a host of visiting performers and their unique talents, this year's University Arts Series appealed to a wide spectrum of the community. Some performers like dancer Edward Villella appealed to all while other artists pleased specific groups of art devotees. Synethesia, a multi-media presentation combining photography, poetry and music, appealed to those people fascinated by new art forms. For history buffs, the Madrigal recreated the joy of an English Christmas. Jack Thomas as Mark Twain, pianist Joseph Fennimore, the Dimov Quartet, photo collections, poetry readings, flute and guitar emsembles . . . a whole world of diverse art forms for a diverse campus.

A long, full crepe gown flowed around her as she stepped into the lights of the Arena — into the midst of an almost empty house.

But, Ella Fitzgerald gave a show that would have pleased an audience of one or one hundred thousand. Backed up by the Dayton Philharmonic orchestra and later by her own swinging trio, Ella came on with her famous intimate, uninhibited jazz sound.

She opened with "'S Wonderful" and later went into a spirited Duke Ellington medley: "Do Nuthin' Till You Hear from Me" and "I Got it Bad and That Ain't Good". Later, "Big Noise from Winnetka" opened into Cole Porter's "It's Allright with Me".

After her performance in the Arena that Thursday evening in February, it's little wonder why she is known as the "First Lady of Song" with a voice the sweetest sound this side of the angels.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader urged students off their apathy to form public interest research groups to help end abuses against the public. He warned that unless consumers act, government and corporate power will dictate. "We can keep our Constitution and still lose our democracy."

Julian Bond, Georgia state representative, concluded that college campuses today are asleep, worried more about jobs than the state of the world. But at least blacks are a potential political force, and to test his hypothesis Bond was seeking support for his possible candidacy for President in 1976. Financial and political support . . .

Just about every politician had his own ideas on how to handle this country's dual economic problems of inflation and recession. Senator William Proxmire, Wisconsin Democrat was no exception. As a member of the Senate Banking Committee, he was in a position to act on his ideas. "We must have either a truly competitive situation or have government regulation across the board. And I believe more in the potential of a truly competitive economy."

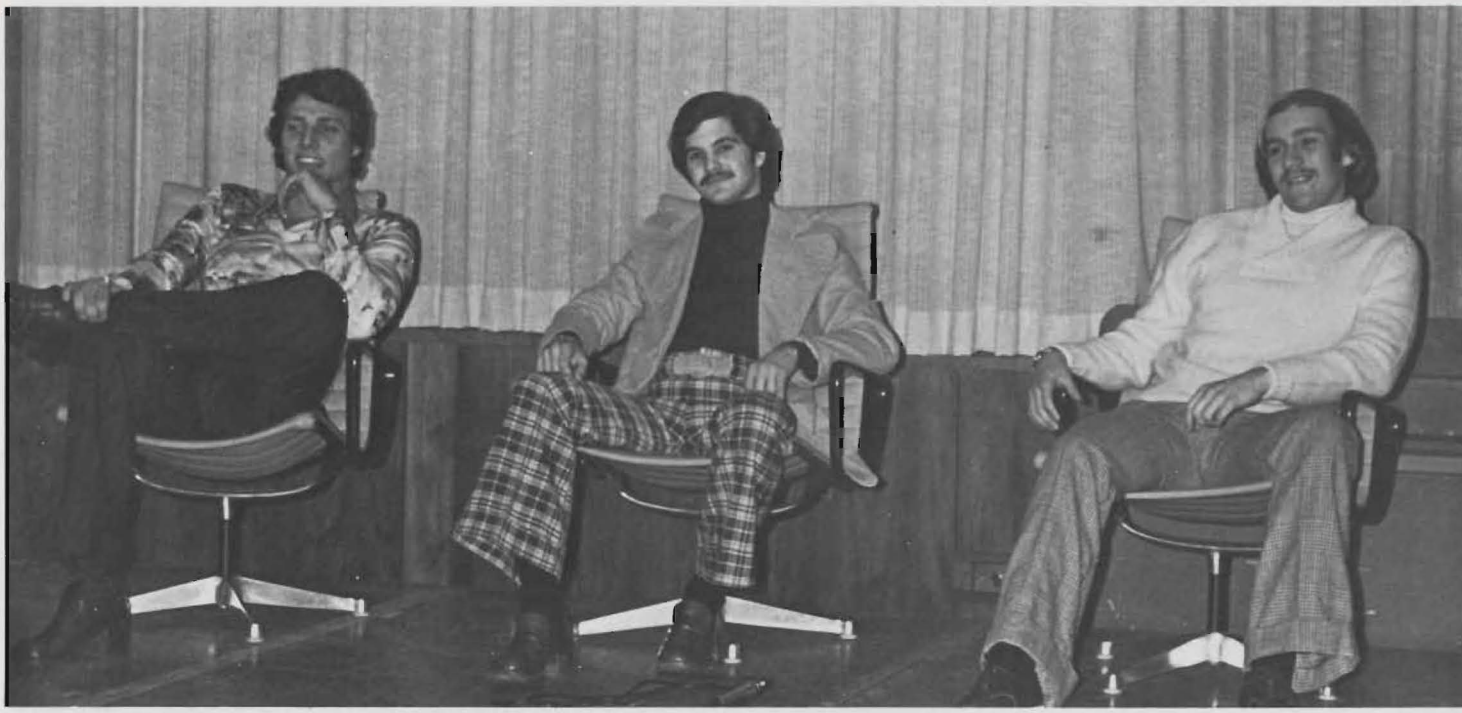
Speaking with flailing arms, investigative reporter Jack Anderson lashed out against the abuses of government and large oil interests. He recounted short stories detailing investigations by the FBI and CIA. And he attacked corporate interests, especially oil. But he was not completely negative: "Americans are strong enough to stand the truth. There's not another country in the world where I could do what I do."



the dating game

to the king

It's the girl's turn to trap the guy for a date, and it's the guy's turn to play king for a day. Only this year the guys had a whole week to grace the dating pedestal usually reserved for women. One might think Turnabout is a real breakthrough for women's lib — the women taking the men out and all — except the traditional dance was started over a quarter of a century ago. The '75 dance festivities included "The Dating Game," King's Preview (zany skits to win votes for the king candidates), the dance at Wampler's, and, of course, the crowning of King Jim Donnelly. Oh, the theme of the dance? "The Way We Were."

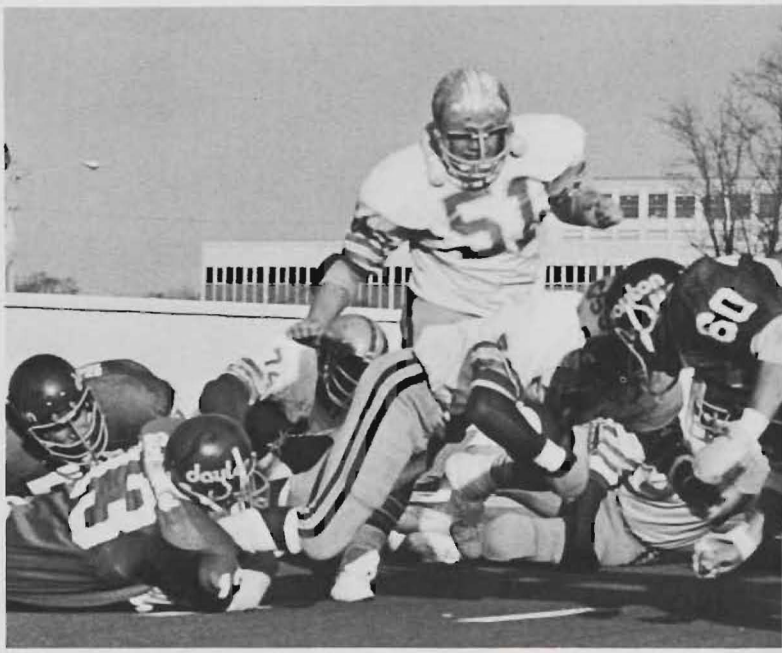
football

"These are times that try men's souls." The famous phrase wasn't originally used to describe the '74 football Flyers. But to anyone who witnessed the act the phrase fit.

Like the walls of Jerico, dreams of fame and glory tumbled down upon the Red and Blue after winning the first two games of the season.

Losing the next eight games in a row, a school record, and finishing the season with a 3-8 log, those exciting dreams turned into a horrible nightmare for second-year Coach Ron Marciniak and the rest of the Flyer faithful.

Behind the running of Walt Wingard and the passing of Tom Vosberg, the Flyers opened the season with a convincing 21-7 rout of Drake.



Playing their first game ever in Astroturfed Welcome Stadium the following week, the Flyers continued to impress with a 23-17 win over Eastern Kentucky. Doug Kastilahn's touchdown reception with 5:46 left in the game proved to be the difference.

It was then the nightmare began. Outscoring the Flyers 34-0 in the second half, the Falcons won handily 41-21.

Returning to Welcome, UD was whipped again. This time, Southern Illinois was the culprit, 38-16.

Never giving up hope, the Flyers traveled south to meet Western Kentucky. They were whipped again, though, 32-15.

The Homecoming game was next. Despite the chilly temperature and overcast skies, the crowd of 11,228 remained hopeful.

Vosberg and Toledo quarterback Gene "swizzle" Swick locked arms in an aerial war. Vosberg won the battle of the skies but Toledo won the war 38-27.

The Flyers played what could have been their best game of the year the following week against East Carolina but lost again 34-6.

Marciniak introduced a new pair of runningbacks to the UD loyalists in that game — freshmen Mark Zimmerman and Mike Waterson. The pair remained for the rest of the year and showed well.

Against Central State the duo totaled over 100 yards rushing but the Flyers were embarrassed 28-25 on a last second Marauder touchdown.

The Red and Blue stayed close to Louisville the following week but lost again late in the game 20-15.

Perhaps the only consolation of the year came in the final game when UD hung on to edge Marshall 14-13.

A young team and injuries to an endless line of regulars hurt the Flyers all year. But as Marciniak said throughout the season, "We didn't give up."

Aided by a picture of goalie Dave Mechler's girlfriend he carried in his sock, the UD booters finished a winning season, 7-3-3, their ninth victorious season since 1965. Falling prey to the Flyers were the Cincinnati Bearcats who have never been able to beat UD. Other losers to the Red and Blue were Toledo, Morehead State, Wittenberg, Cedarville and Earlham. And this record despite several injuries sustained by the team.

Cahill, Gerker and Rohrbach all saw glimpses of gold metals in Montreal when they were invited to try out for the US Olympic soccer team. Unfortunately, none made the final squad. Cahill, although suffering from torn knee cartilage from two years ago, is leaving for an offer from a professional New York team. And Richardson will have to find a new student manager as UD also bids farewell to Bubba Sullivan.

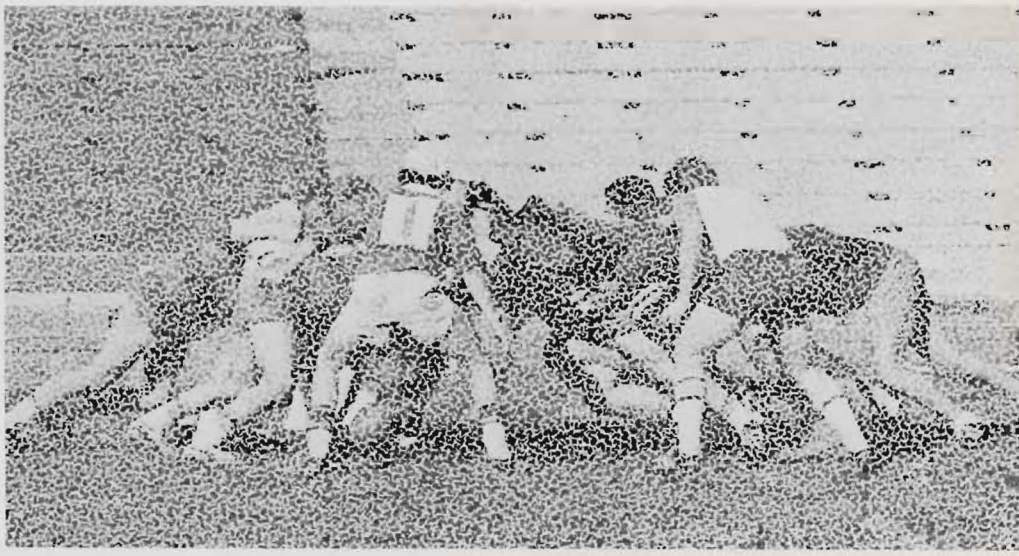
UD's rugby team punched in its best season ever with four wins and three losses. Slamming Miami Valley, 26-4, and Ohio Wesleyan, 16-9, the ruggers fell to University of Michigan, 3-18. Seeming to redeem themselves, they mauled Xavier, 24-6, but then faced defeat by University of Kentucky, 4-15. Findlay offered a big ego boost with a 32-4 take-home, but their final game found UD losing to John Carroll, 4-6. With the spring season approaching, UD ruggers will be the home sponsors for the Carling Black Label Rugby tournament, with 16 teams participating.



Ruggers are a rare breed. Facing rain, snow, sleet, and hail, their game goes on.

Spectators straggle into position along the touch line with numerous canines staring in approval. Hustling through rucks, mauls, scrums, the teams emit strange groans and moans.

Every once in a while, someone bites the dust a little too hard, and the team loses a player. But an aura of sportsmanship not dependent upon a referee's whistle pervades the entire panorama. The game ends, the beer is passed around, and it's hit the showers and then to Tim's.

There are several sports in which mental attitude is just as important as athletic skill. Volleyball most certainly is a contender for first place in this category.

The Flyer volleyball squad showed their ability to think their way to the top with the best of them as they turned a dismal 7 for 18 start into a fourth place finish in the state.

After losing 11 of their first 18 the women put together a fantastic winning streak taking 14 of their next 17 matches.

In the State Tournament where they were seeded third behind Cleveland State and OSU, the Flyers quickly defeated Akron, Toledo, and Miami University before falling to Cleveland State, 4-15 and 12-15.

Dayton finally copped fourth place by downing Cedarville after losing to OSU in the semi-finals.

Attired in plaid skirts, white blouses and knee socks, rather reminiscent of a girls' private school gym class, women's field hockey brought home the Ohio Valley League Championship.

Along with the laurels, the women totaled up a 4-2 record for regular season play. In the league tournament, they defeated Centerville, UC and Earlham, while losing to Miami.

In the state tournament, Bowling Green and again Cedarville fell to the hustle of the women. In regular season play, Ohio Dominican, UC, Wittenberg and Cedarville fell to the slashing sticks, while Eastern Kentucky and Ohio Wesleyan led the women to defeat.

One of the strongest of women's sports, the field hockey team has represented, well, the female side of the sweat socks. Coach Pat Jayson led her team to a 10-3-1 record for the fall.

There are some sports on campus where no one comes out a loser. The Intramural program continued to expand during 1974-75, with over 60 percent of the student body participating in the various athletic acitivities.

In addition to the well-known sports such as baseball, softball, football and basketball, 12 new activities were added to the year-long schedule. Such things as cage ball, darts, horseshoes and golf allowed more students to become involved.

Billy Mayo supervises the IM program, coordinating the scheduling of games at all available field and court areas.

For the first time, a monthly newsletter, "Hardee's Intramural Highlights," appeared on campus to inform the community on what was happening in the program.

UD hockey Coach Walt DeAnna an 11-year veteran, boasting an 85-50 overall record, led the icers into a new rink in 1975 with high hopes of improving last year's disappointing 4-8-2 record.

Abandoning Hara Arena's cramped quarters, the Flyers moved into the spanking-new Kettering Arena with a team that lacked size but was loaded with speed.

Attitude, conditioning and defense were the keys as Dayton jumped off to one of the best starts in the squad's history.

"We get along better this year," said wingman Bill Bommarito. "Everybody has a better attitude and is more enthusiastic."

"We were not strong on defense and had no strength at forward, last year," said DeAnna. "We had to change our whole concept of play as the defense took chances to help the offense.

"This year's team is the finest skating team since the 1969-1970 squad. They could be the finest skaters I've ever had. They're already the best passing team I've ever coached."

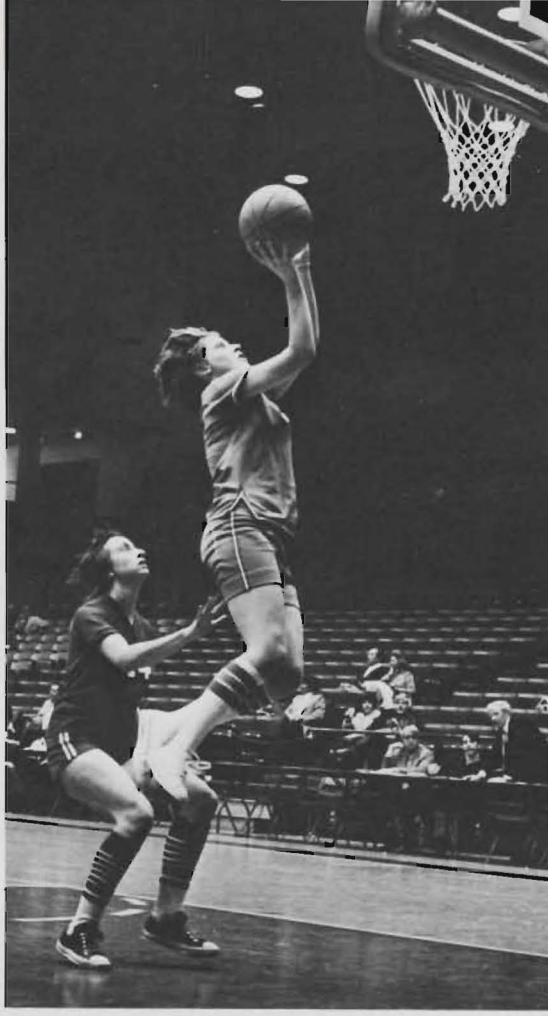
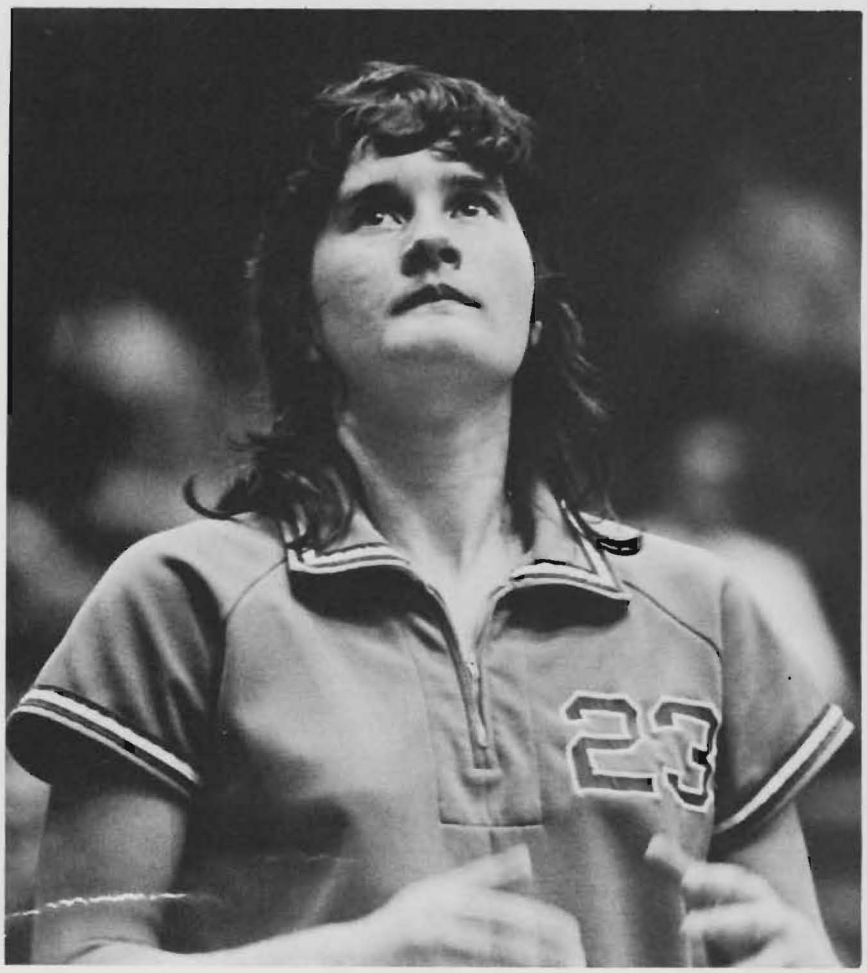
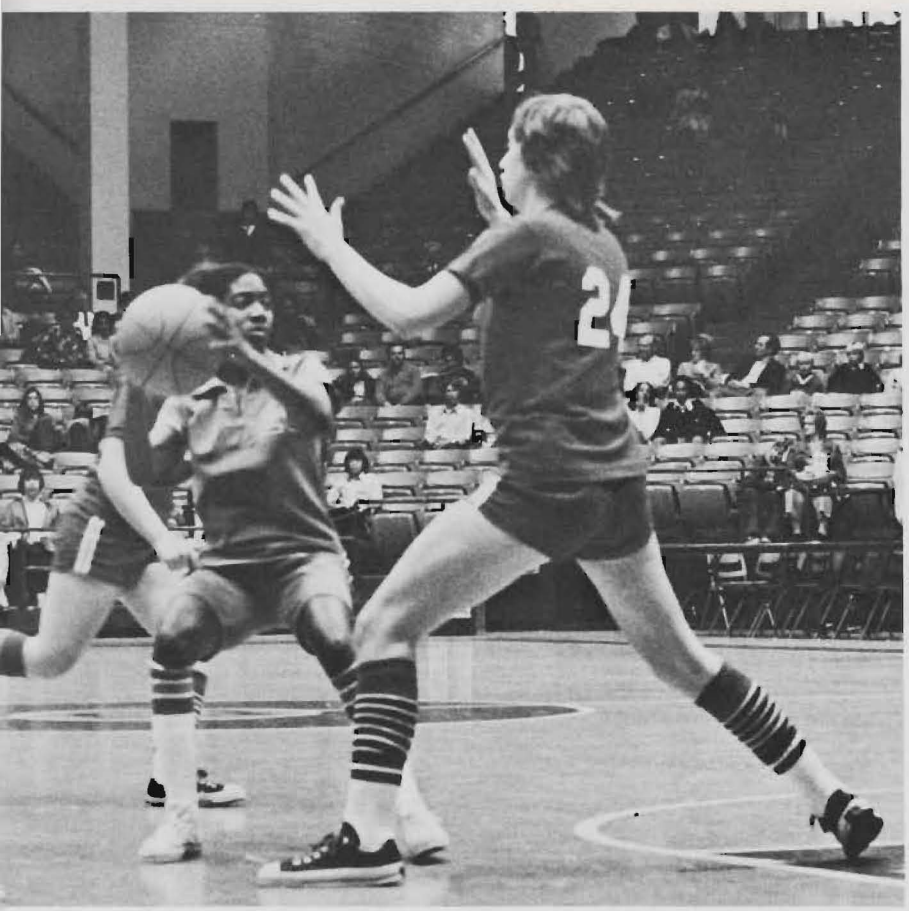
women's basketball







For the first time in the history of the University, the women's basketball team was scheduled to play preliminary games before the men's varsity — in of all places — the UD Arena.

Coach Elaine Dreidame was forced to work with a relatively inexperienced team as half of the 1973-1974 squad was lost to graduation.

Nevertheless, the returners had impressive credentials. Returning starters were sophomore guard Sandy Johnson, who averaged 11 points, junior guard Betty Burke, who averaged nine points, and junior center-forward Mary Lou Holder, who averaged five points.

Also returning from last year's squad were Carol Miller and Pat Penders.

"This will be a trial year for us," Dreidame said. "The number of games we play in the Arena next year will depend on how well we're received."

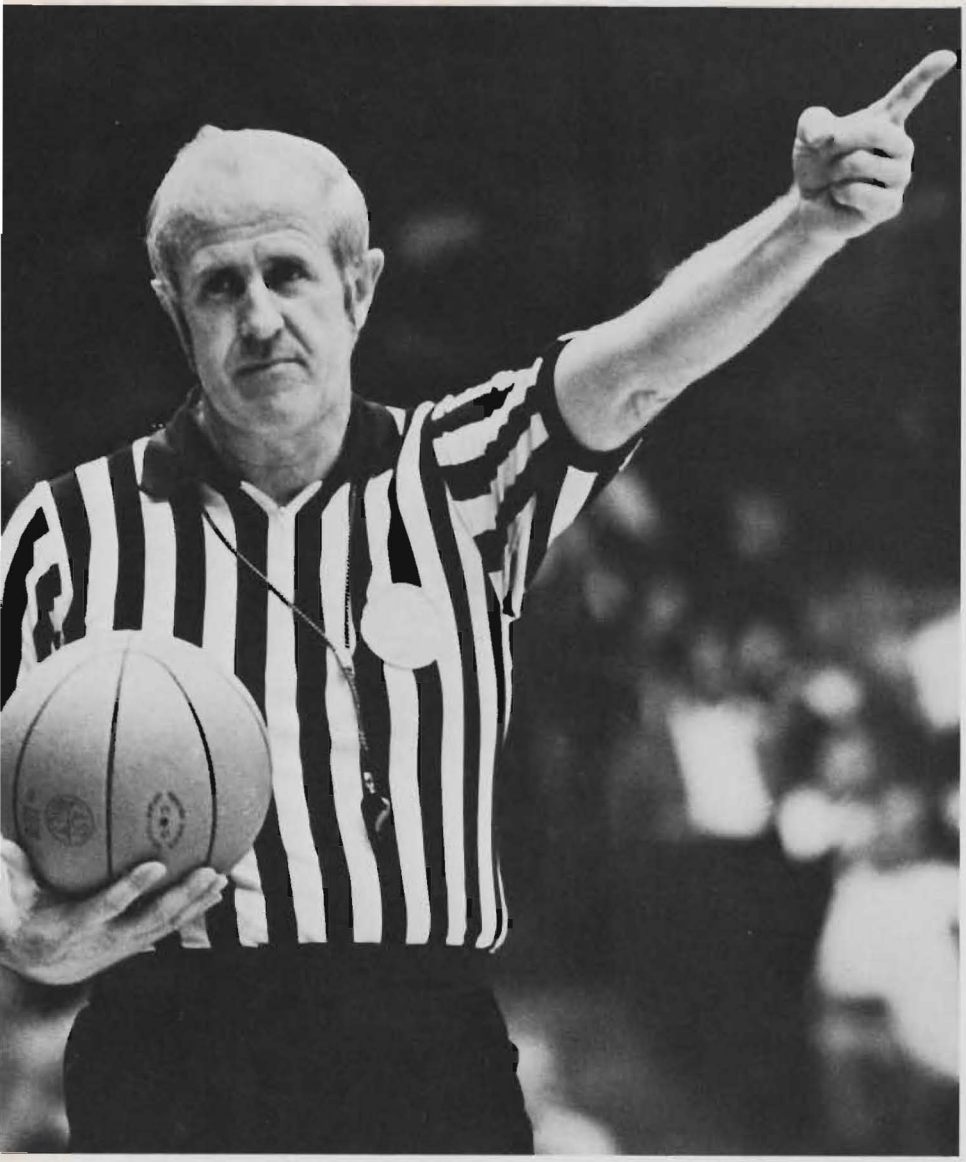
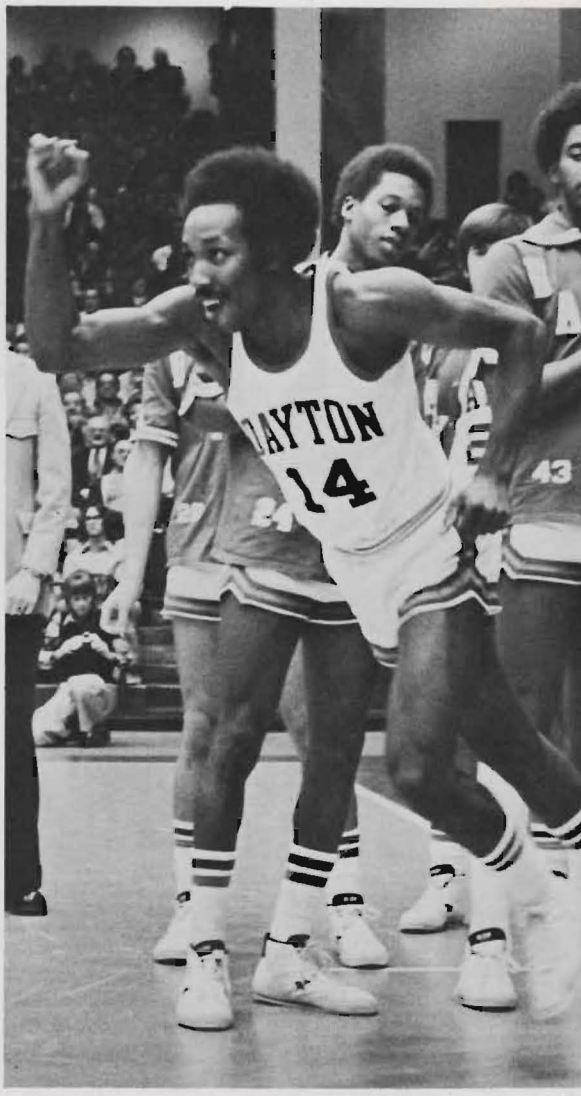
basketball



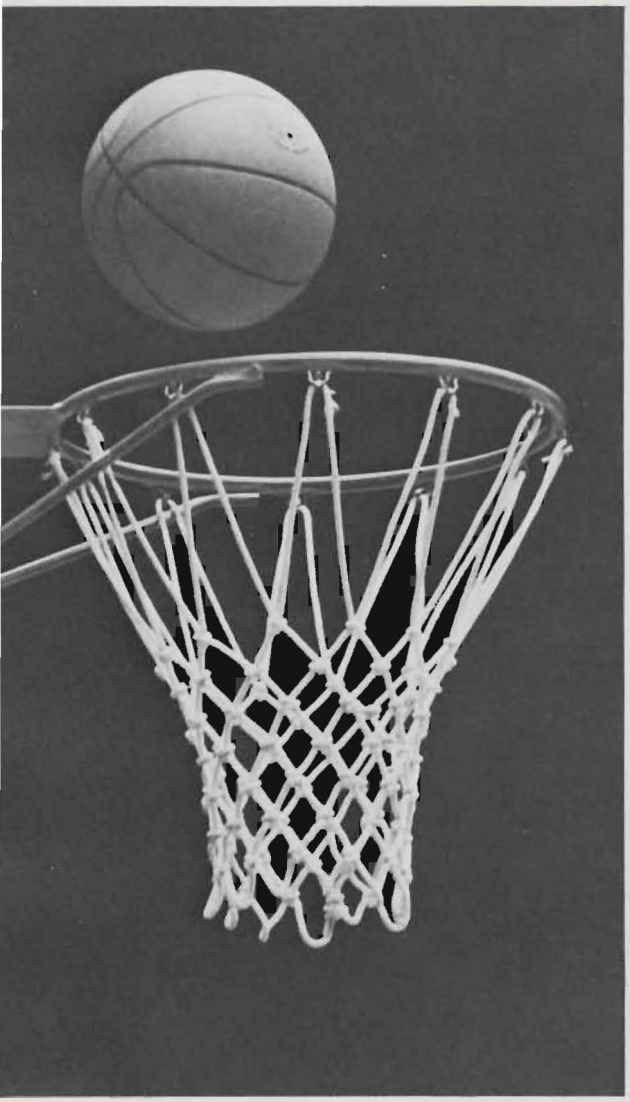


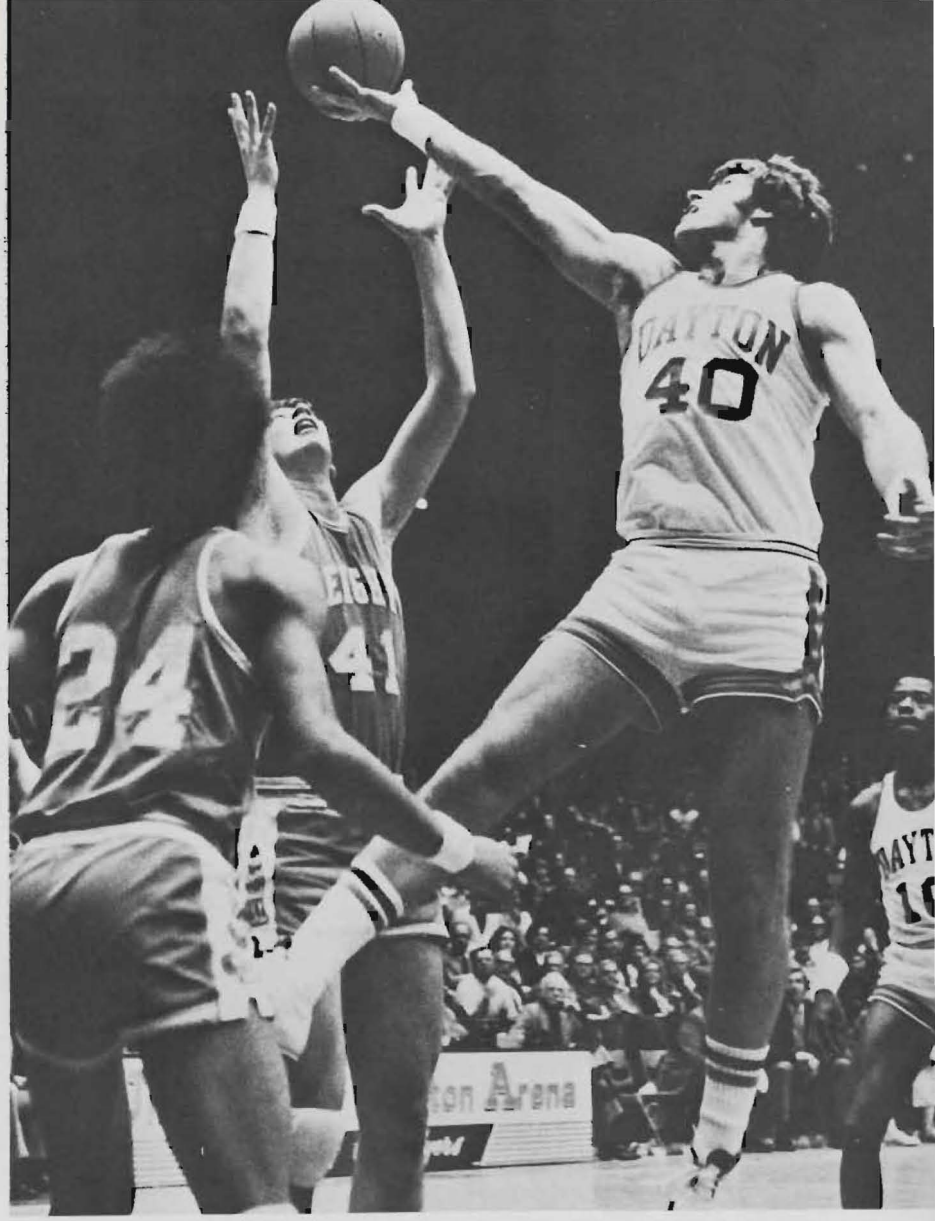
After last year's outstanding 20-9 season, the stunning dissection of Notre Dame and the triple-overtime loss to UCLA in the NCAA Western regionals, hopes for the 1974-'75 campaign shined brightly.

Missing were superstars Donald Smith and Mike Sylvester. But, returning were The Man's gift to Dayton, Johnny Davis, co-captains Allen Elijah and Joe Fisher, muscleman Jim Testerman and Leighton Moulton.

Coach Don Donoher, beginning his 11th season as Dayton's head man, stressed the need for team "execution" if the Flyers were to attain their 27th consecutive non-losing season.

"We'll simply have to rely on better team execution this year," said Donoher. "Our players will have to work harder for their shots."





DAYTON

Due to a scheduling quirk, the Flyers opened the season with nine consecutive home games. Dayton won three of the first four, topping Old Dominion, Xavier and Detroit. The Flyers weren't as lucky against highly rated Louisville and Big Ten power, Michigan.

In the opening round of the UDIT the Flyers lost to a hot Texas Tech club while LaSalle trounced Clemson. In the consolation match the next night, the Red and Blue came from behind to edge Clemson by two, 71-69. LaSalle ran all over Texas Tech in the finals to win the tournament.

Over the first seven games, Johnny Davis performed like an All-American. His backcourt partner, Leighton Moulton showed 100 percent improvement over his sophomore season. Allen Elijah and Joe Fisher grabbed every rebound in sight, and Jim Testerman provided much needed muscle inslide.

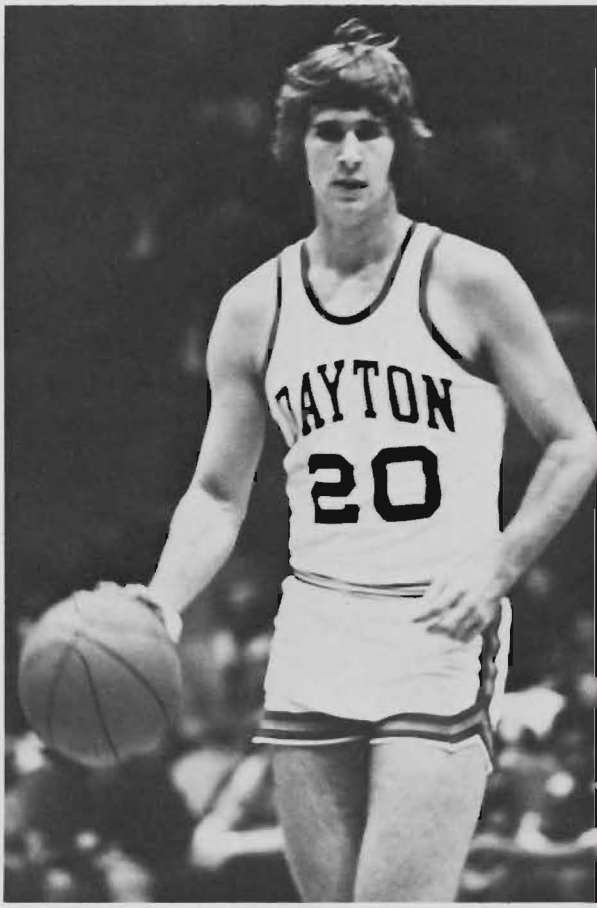
While the UD student body was home eating the Christmas turkey, the Flyers remained behind and celebrated the holidays in a different manner.

Holding off a late Akron surge, UD hung on to edge the Zips, 73-72. Then, a couple of days later, the Flyers displayed the old axiom of brawn over brain, as they whipped Harvard, 77-64.

As Dayton entered the year 1975, the basketball team was besieged by a plague that would have made Moses drool. Over the next five games, the Flyers lost four of them — all by an amazing one point. Pepperdine, Houston, Creighton and Duquesne all turned the trick.

The Flyers did manage to squeeze a road victory over Eastern Kentucky but losses to DePaul and Miami gave UD a 1-6 January log.



The Flyers hoped February would bring them the success that somehow got away in January. For a while, it looked as though UD would indeed start the long road to recovery.

First, Loyola of Chicago came to town for the first afternoon game that had ever been played in the Arena. The Flyers had little trouble blowing the Ramblers back to the Windy City as Johnny Davis hit for 22 points. Western Kentucky visited the Flyers next and it was Davis again who sparked an overtime Dayton win. The sophomore sensation not only blocked a last-second Hilltopper shot, but he also took charge in the overtime period to clinch the victory.

Just as things began to look good, the Flyers slumped again, losing three straight to UT-Chattanooga, Cincinnati and South Carolina. In both the Cincinnati and South Carolina games, UD hit cold shooting spells late in the games that cost it the wins.

A .500 season eluded the Dayton club for the first time in 26 years as the Flyers dropped their last four games after beating Xavier in an attempted comeback. South Florida, Miami, and Louisville were the culprits along with Notre Dame, who avenged last season's upset by no less than 33 points.

The Marching Co-Eds gave the football fans something to look at while listening to the band perform at halftime. This year Janice Bauman, Lisa Berling, Linda Bowman, Julia Bryant, Connie Caito, Cherie Carl, Betsy Conway, Sharon Davis, Debbie DeCurtins, Lea Ann Fawns, Jan Ferri, Dawn Flack, Marie Glaser, Brenda Hertlein, Bernita Jackson, Mary Kramen, Judy Lorette, Gwen Reid, Andrea Simun, Joyce Trissel, Debbie Walsh, Jan Wise, and Gail Yersavich delighted the crowd with their high-kicking, lively routines.

Majorettes Christine Hamm, Linda Roesky and Nina Spatafora whirled and twirled to add a bit of sparkle to sometimes dull days. Mary Blazek, Mary Cummings, Gelzie Ely, Linette Ferrens, Cindy Fiedler, Nola Henderson, Judy Maurer, Marja Ross, and Doris Valentine carried the banners.

These lovely ladies were worth coming to the football game to see . . . even if the team did lose.

We all remember that hot humid August day four years ago when we all stepped on to the campus for the first time. We arrived wide-eyed and in a state of shock, bearing a load of idealistic expectations and dreadful misgivings.

But we managed to survive, cautiously taking a step at a time until a measure of confidence was ours. And we became part of a community; a few thousand young people tucked into their own little island that became our home.

We experienced all sorts of things, learning about ourselves and about each other. We watched as our dreams dissolved and then reformed again. We became aware of things that changed us.

And now that our years of college are over, we respond with blurred emotions; with joy at having finished, but with melancholy at having left so much behind.

As we leave, we take the priceless gift of our memories with us, each carrying his own kaleidoscope of images, the tiny, intensely personal snapshots of life that we will all treasure.

Now we must begin the process again, meeting the new challenge with just a bit more confidence and a little more wisdom than four years ago.

u.d. law school

This is not really the first year UD has boasted a law school, technically speaking. There was a once-upon-a-time school that closed during the '30s. So the opening of the new school in the '70s is actually — if you will — a re-opening. But for UD students, 1974-75 represented the first year for the law school ... the first year the ground floor of the library was roped off from undergraduates ... the first year that the LSAT did not seem quite so overwhelming to pre-law students. For the 150-plus beginning law students, it was the first year of spending 40 to 50 hours each week in study ... the first year to start calling the law library "home" ... the first year of four before they receive their law degree. And for Dr. Richard Braun, Dean of the Law School, it was the first year to guide the school through its birth and growing pains. And growth is what the law school is all about, both for the school itself and for UD as a whole. One classroom will become two, then three ... freshmen will become sophomores ... students will someday become attorneys. The school may have started small — confined to the basement of a library — but there is plenty of room for expansion of facilities, personnel and students. And there is a great need to develop legal education to maintain the ethical standards — or to improve them — within the law profession. It may not be big and it may never become another Harvard, but the law school has a great deal to offer ... especially to its students.

you are only beginning

while others are starting over you are embarking on an unknown journey . . .

wherever the path of life leads . . .

through doors waiting patiently to be unlocked.

Well, gang, here it is!!! After eight months of arduous labor, cursing, hollering at photographers, hollering at the staff, and getting hollered at by our advisor, this edition of the Daytonian is finally in print.

You who have purchased it now find that it has been well worth it (we hope). Those who have not — tough luck.

We, the editors, now must thank the staff. Even though they goofed off at times they still got the job done.

We also owe a great vote of thanks to some of the Flyer News staff who helped out when our own people did not show up. They gave of themselves to help this book come out on time. Finally we must thank you, the students and faculty at the university who ARE this yearbook.

Many of you will never again see this place that has become a second home these last four years. No more block parties (for those of us that remember what block parties were), no more Saturday nights at Tim's, no more walks up Stuart hill, and no more 8:00 classes.

We hope this book will accompany you on your travels through life, a reminder of simpler. less hectic times.

We did our best with what we had; we hope you will endeavor to do the same.

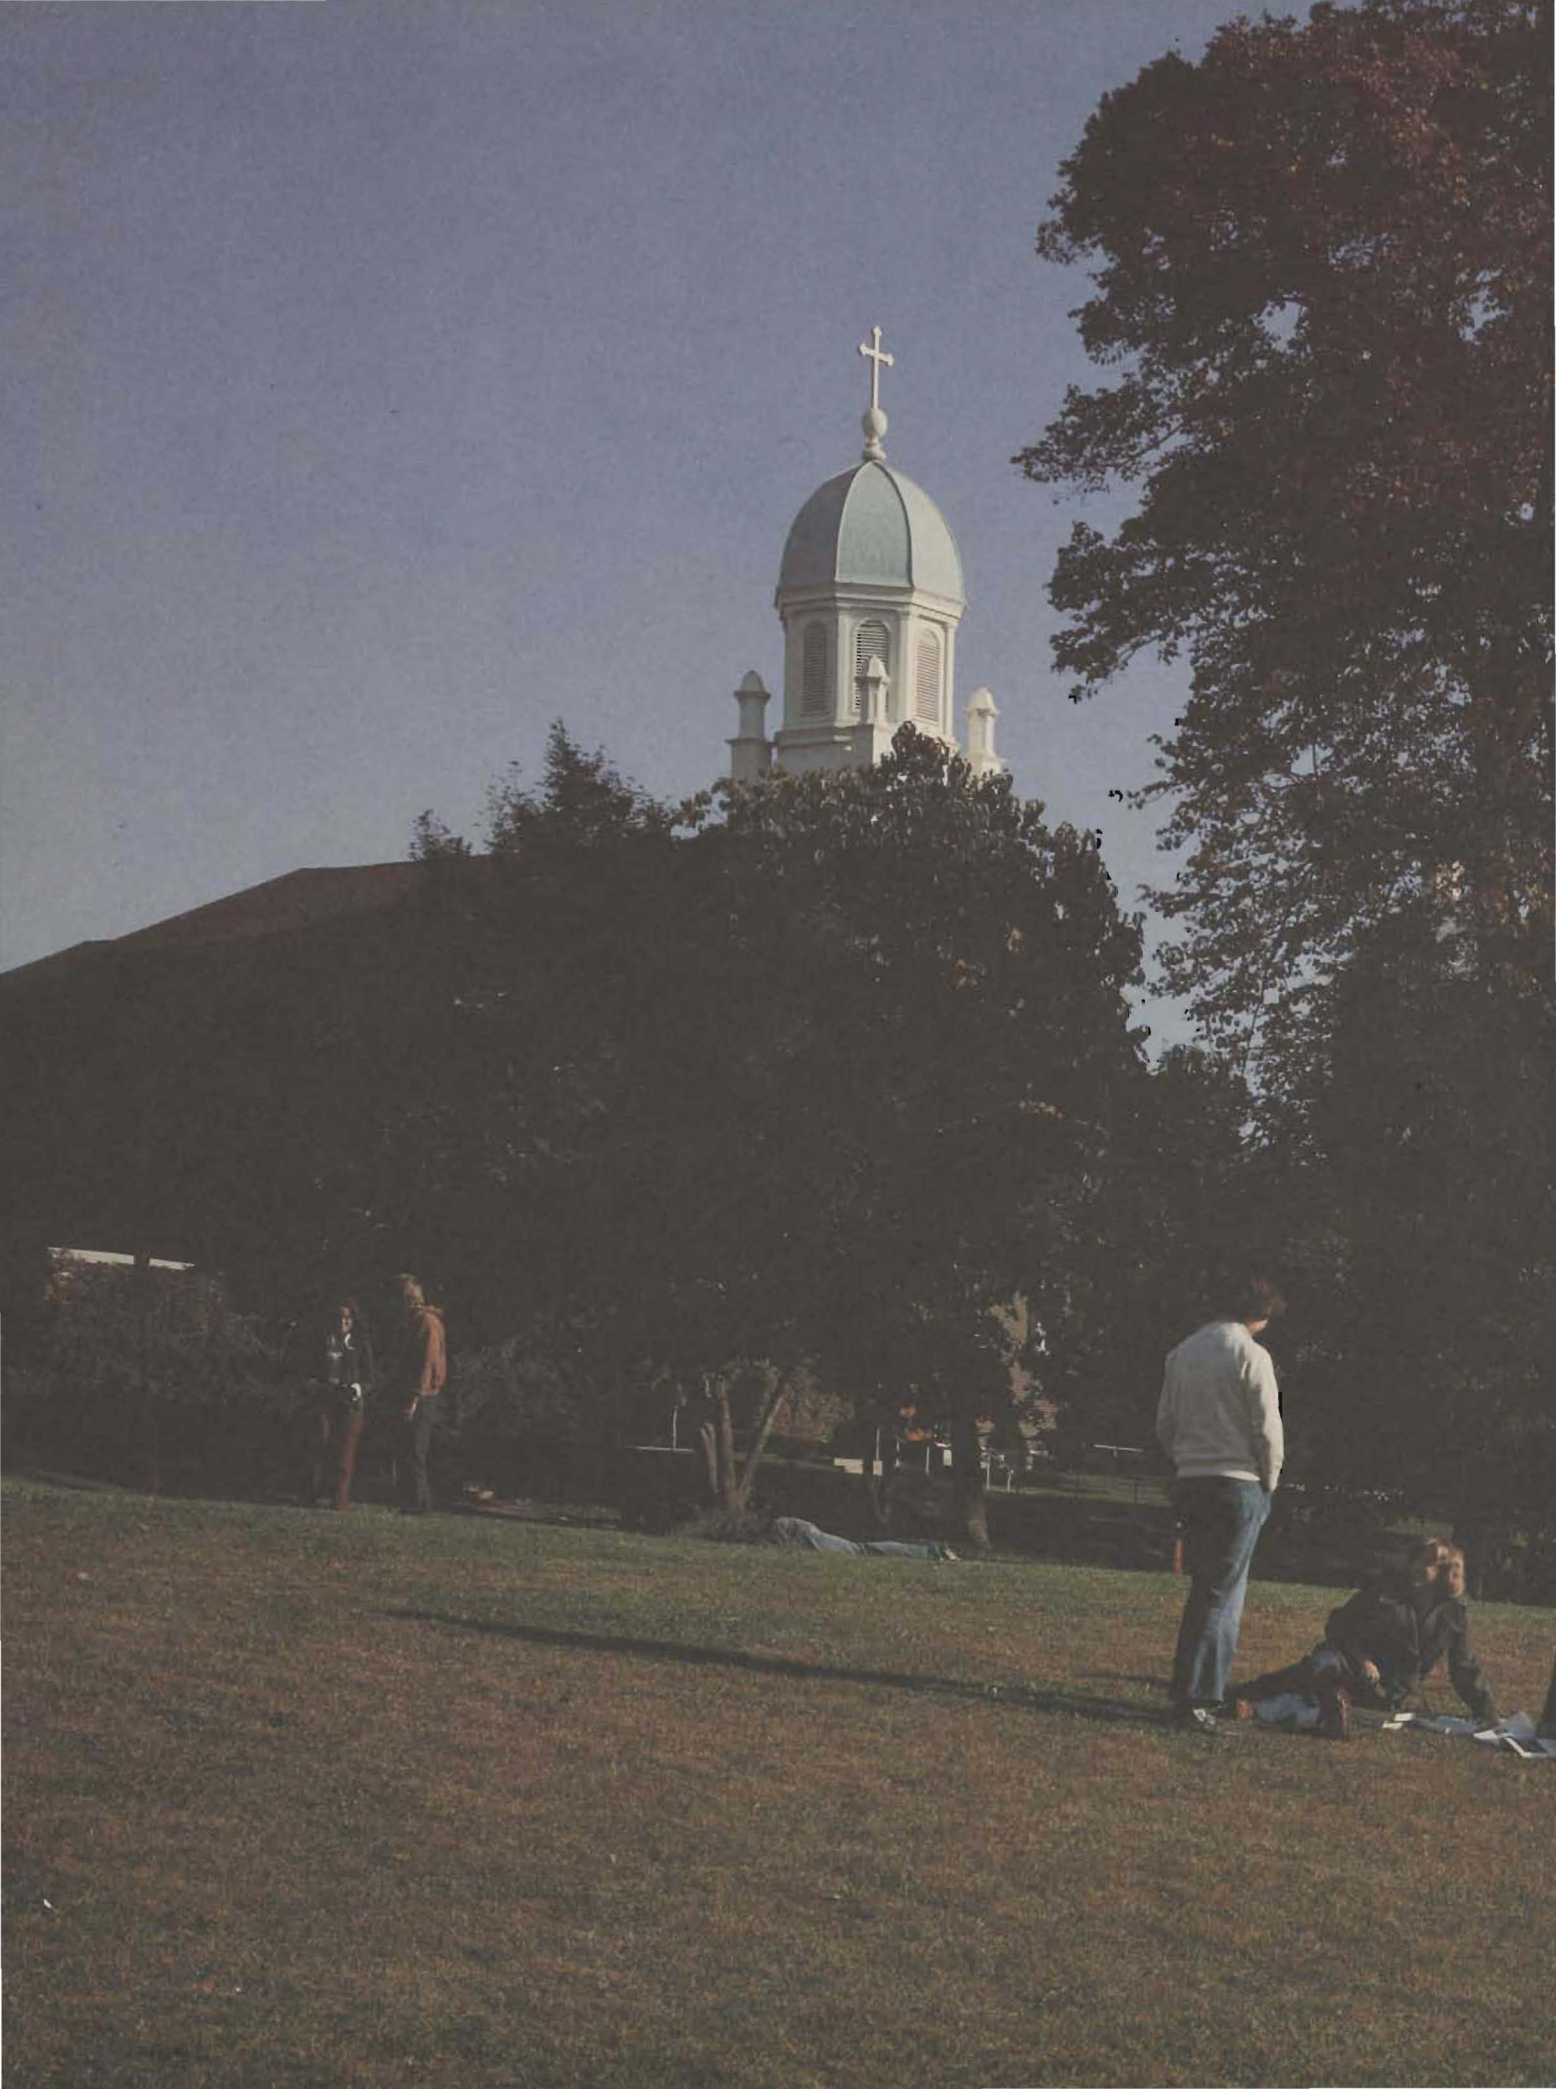
This chronicle of life at the University of Dayton is the culmination of the efforts of many people. Hundreds of photographs and thousands of words fill the space between the covers of this volume. For the images in this yearbook we must thank the following photographers:

Frank Benedett
Delma Studios
Steve DeMartino
Mark Duncan
Terry Duncan
Ken Grayzel
Leslie Hayes
Joe Higgins
Frank Malczewski
Robert Mellinger
John Moreau
Mark Osterday
Ken Schwartz
Les Shokes
Connie Waligura
Sean Wilkinson
Jan Wrzesinski

Although a picture is supposedly worth a thousand words, it took many more to represent this year. The talents of these writers helped bind together all these events:

Rick Delaney
Mark Duncan
Terry Duncan
Mike Malone
Alice McGarvey
Steve Wilder


We are grateful for the continous support of our advisor, Mary Devine, and wish to specially thank our yearbook representative, Charlie Miller for his gift of his time to this venture.
