showing someone you care letting yourself know your are going to be alright letting others know that they are not in this alone you can't life your life alone we need others to actually live and grow people let us know we have something to live for

Pray

yourself hope for the better

There is no easy life...

...but there is

HOPE

People are like branches on a tree, each and every one of them are different. We offer different things to this world and inspire people in different ways. We should express our differences and not hide them.
