

with. prom, too "omfortable. g. Mue to their tion in er too pake care of heir sibil ents. Life ull of sadness. Yet, v train our minilver lining. See, right w, in the midst of u. e try to find that lining. Suddenly, we are blessed with old to literally be home, with our immediate family. where else should we go. We are being called to remain diligent, resilient and responsible, for the common good. I was that senior college student who never got to attend that senior dinner. I was the high school student who grew up very poor and was teased. I was odd. I recall many MANY dinners where my mom ever ate because after we 4 kids had our meal, nothing was left. Sacrifices are made around the world. My daughters have father can't see them right now. And babies grow faster than the speed of light. Nouveau's father may not see her. We will be walking away then. Yet, we do because that is the Marianist message. We pray you each take this time, as that—TIME. Time to be grateful for any privileges you know you have, from that roof over your head to those socks on your feet. I ask that you imagine what it must be like for homeless folks right now, and for families with several children who are now laid off and can't provide—their v ur g. The poor are suffering even greater. I u pray for those who are suffering the it. P for ical workers and delivery drivers and ery are loyees who are extending themselves Many have NO CHOICE but to work. Th. science the endless ours it needs to research novel virus and provide solutions to the world. Science is incredible. May you see this time as one of reflection. We will recover, but we won't ever be the same. Yet, we have one another. We have the ability to change and give hope. We have the privileges of educa hot meals, comfy beds and water. Take this time k. To be grateful for fe and what you have to on. e each of us that calling is different. To practice soci- ncing and remain ome. If you go out, be prot- HERS. See, that's the silver lining too. Li' ers, not just you. You are young. Blessed to out a ton of responsibilities. stay focused on those positives while remaining sensitive and empathetic to those negatives. I will miss your faces. o very much. I hold a deep invested interest in your uccess and personal well-being. Let's continue our relationship it with positive thoughts. \ of the learning outcomes. \ our education as that provides us with hope and understanding. I write this with a heavy heart but a hopeful one. Each of you are experiencing the ripple effect of this global crisis in your wn ways, you each are going through this differently, yet ve are all in th' getl gh school seniors with no prom. ov 't get that senior dinner or awa. eletion. then I think of others who ever had those opportunities to begin with. So SO many high school seniors never get to go to prom, maybe due to eing too poor or perhaps they are too "odd" or "not cool enough" to even feel comfortable going. Many kids don't even get to college du to th on in life, whether oo poor or having to ' carry blings or parents. life is complex and fu sac. Y e must train our minds to see that silve ne, right now, in the midst f uncertainty, I try to lin' suddenly, we are blessed with being tol. eally home, with our mmediate family. No where else should we go. We are eing called to remain diligent, resilient and responsible, or the common good. I was that senior college student who never got to attend that senior dinner. I was the high made. he. t can't let grow faster speed of light. e's father ee her for two. ! Yet, we for others. That is the message. Not just you poor common? In the common? With that said, I pray you each take the time, as that—TIME. Time to be grateful for any privileges you know you have, from that roof over your head to those socks on your feet. I ask that you imagine what it must be like for homeless folks right now, and for families with several children who are now laid off and can't provide their world is crumbling). The poor are suffering even greater now. I ask that you pray for those who are suffering the most. Pray for medical workers and delivery drivers and grocery store employees who are extending themselves. Many have NO CHOICE but to work. Th. science the endless hours it needs to research this novel virus and provide solutions to the world. Science is incredible. May you see this time as one of reflection. We will recover, but we won't ever be the same. Yet, we have one another. We have the ability to change and give hope. We have the privileges of education. hot meals, comfy beds and water. Take this time. To be grateful for life and what you have to offer—and for each of us that calling is different. To practice social distancing and remain home. If you go out, be protective of OTHERS. See, that's the silver lining too. Life is about others, not just you. You are young. Blessed to be about a ton of responsibilities. stay focused on those positives while remaining sensitive and empathetic to those negatives. I will miss your faces. o very much. I hold a deep invested interest in your uccess and personal well-being. Let's continue our relationship via cyber. e it with positive thoughts. We will ac of the learning outcomes. And we will our education as that provides us with hope and understanding. I write this with a heavy heart but a hopeful one. Each of you are experiencing the ripple effect of this global crisis in your wn ways, you each are going through this differently, yet ve are all in th' yetl gh school seniors with no prom. 't get that senior dinner or award celebration. then I think of others who ever had those opportunities to begin with. So SO many high school seniors never get to go to prom, maybe due to eing too poor or perhaps they are too "odd" or "not cool enough" to even feel comfortable going. Many kids don't even get to college due to th on in life, whether oo poor or having to ' carry blings or parents. life is complex and full of sadness. Yet, we must train our minds to see that silver lining. See, right now, in the midst f uncertainty, I try to find that lining. Suddenly, we are blessed with being told to literally be home, with our immediate family. No where else should we go. We are eing called to remain diligent, resilient and responsible, for the common good. I was that senior college student who never got to attend that senior dinner. I was the high school student who grew up very poor and was teased. I was odd. I recall many MANY dinners where my mom ever ate because after we 4 kids had our meal, nothing was left. Sacrifices are made around the world. My daughters have father can't see them right now. And babies grow faster than the speed of light. Nouveau's father may not see her. We will be walking away then. Yet, we do because that is the Marianist message. We pray you each take this time, as that—TIME. Time to be grateful for any privileges you know you have, from that roof over your head to those socks on your feet. I ask that you imagine what it must be like for homeless folks right now, and for families with several children who are now laid off and can't provide—their v ur g. The poor are suffering even greater. I u pray for those who are suffering the it. P for ical workers and delivery drivers and ery are loyees who are extending themselves Many have NO CHOICE but to work. Th. science the endless ours it needs to research novel virus and provide solutions to the world. Science is incredible. May you see this time as one of reflection. We will recover, but we won't ever be the same. Yet, we have one another. We have the ability to change and give hope. We have the privileges of education. hot meals, comfy beds and water. Take this time. To be grateful for life and what you have to offer—and for each of us that calling is different. To practice social distancing and remain home. If you go out, be protective of OTHERS. See, that's the silver lining too. Life is about others, not just you. You are young. Blessed to be about a ton of responsibilities. stay focused on those positives while remaining sensitive and empathetic to those negatives. I will miss your faces. o very much. I hold a deep invested interest in your uccess and personal well-being. Let's continue our relationship via cyber. e it with positive thoughts. We will ac of the learning outcomes. And we will our education as that provides us with hope and understanding. I write this with a heavy heart but a hopeful one. Each of you are experiencing the ripple effect of this global crisis in your wn ways, you each are going through this differently, yet ve are all in th' yetl gh school seniors with no prom. 't get that senior dinner or award celebration. then I think of others who ever had those opportunities to begin with. So SO many high school seniors never get to go to prom, maybe due to eing too poor or perhaps they are too "odd" or "not cool enough" to even feel comfortable going. Many kids don't even get to college due to th on in life, whether oo poor or having to ' carry blings or parents. life is complex and full of sadness. Yet, we must train our minds to see that silver lining. See, right now, in the midst f uncertainty, I try to find that lining. Suddenly, we are blessed with being told to literally be home, with our immediate family. No where else should we go. We are eing called to remain diligent, resilient and responsible, for the common good. I was that senior college student who never got to attend that senior dinner. I was the high

Not just you
poor common?
In the common?
With that said, I pray you each take the time, as that—TIME. Time to be grateful for any privileges you know you have, from that roof over your head to those socks on your feet. I ask that you imagine what it must be like for homeless folks right now, and for families with several children who are now laid off and can't provide their world is crumbling). The poor are suffering even greater now. I ask that you pray for those who are suffering the most. Pray for medical workers and delivery drivers and grocery store employees who are extending themselves. Many have NO CHOICE but to work. Th. science the endless hours it needs to research this novel virus and provide solutions to the world. Science is incredible. May you see this time as one of reflection. We will recover, but we won't ever be the same. Yet, we have one another. We have the ability to change and give hope. We have the privileges of education. hot meals, comfy beds and water. Take this time. To be grateful for life and what you have to offer—and for each of us that calling is different. To practice social distancing and remain home. If you go out, be protective of OTHERS. See, that's the silver lining too. Life is about others, not just you. You are young. Blessed to be about a ton of responsibilities. stay focused on those positives while remaining sensitive and empathetic to those negatives. I will miss your faces. o very much. I hold a deep invested interest in your uccess and personal well-being. Let's continue our relationship via cyber. e it with positive thoughts. We will ac of the learning outcomes. And we will our education as that provides us with hope and understanding. I write this with a heavy heart but a hopeful one. Each of you are experiencing the ripple effect of this global crisis in your wn ways, you each are going through this differently, yet ve are all in th' yetl gh school seniors with no prom. 't get that senior dinner or award celebration. then I think of others who ever had those opportunities to begin with. So SO many high school seniors never get to go to prom, maybe due to eing too poor or perhaps they are too "odd" or "not cool enough" to even feel comfortable going. Many kids don't even get to college due to th on in life, whether oo poor or having to ' carry blings or parents. life is complex and full of sadness. Yet, we must train our minds to see that silver lining. See, right now, in the midst f uncertainty, I try to find that lining. Suddenly, we are blessed with being told to literally be home, with our immediate family. No where else should we go. We are eing called to remain diligent, resilient and responsible, for the common good. I was that senior college student who never got to attend that senior dinner. I was the high

we have one another