HOLLYWOOD ACTOR AND AUTHOR MOONLIGHTS AS A MENTOR FOR YOUTH; HILL HARPER TO GIVE FREE TALK OCT. 16, PART OF DIVERSITY LECTURE SERIES

DAYTON, Ohio — Activist, author and actor Hill Harper comes to the University of Dayton Friday, Oct. 16, for a 7:30 p.m. talk in the RecPlex as part of the 2009-2010 Diversity Lecture Series. It's free and open to the public.

Harper, who appears in the hit CBS drama series CSI: NY as the reclusive coroner Sheldon Hawkes, has written three books, including the newly published The Conversation: How Black Men and Women Can Build Loving Relationships. He has written two New York Times' bestsellers, Letters to a Young Brother: MANifest Your Destiny and Letters to a Young Sister: DeFINE Your Destiny. Both are advice books to teens.

Free parking is available in all single-letter lots: C, G, P, B, D and A.

When Harper visits college campuses, he encourages students to be architects of their lives, to write their destinies. Drawing on lessons from his own life, he talks about peer pressure, the pitfalls of materialism and the importance of education.

Harper graduated magna cum laude from Brown University and earned two degrees from Harvard University — a J.D. from the law school and an MPA from the John F. Kennedy School of Government. He performed with Boston's Black Folks Theater Company, one of the oldest and most acclaimed black theater troupes in the country.

Prior to CSI: NY, Harper appeared in City of Angels and The Handler, and he made guest starring appearances in television shows such as Soul Food, The Sopranos, ER, NYPD Blue and The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air.

As a film actor, he recently starred in the HBO movie, Lackawanna Blues, and received critical acclaim for his performance in the independent film, The Visit. He also has appeared in
