Quote Of the Week

*"Let us be renewed by God's mercy, let us be loved by Jesus, let us enable the power of his love to transform our lives too; and let us become agents of this mercy, channels through which God can water the earth, protect all creation and make justice and peace
flourish."*

Symbolic Actions of Pope Francis

All three of today's readings are filled with symbolic acts. That's not too surprising since the Bible is filled with such things. And we are part of a Church that swims in a sea of symbolic actions, so much so that we sometimes take them for granted. When was the last time you paid attention to making the sign of the cross?

Pope Francis has so far shown a propensity to recycle the symbolic acts of Jesus in ways that remind us of the heart of the Gospel. After his election, he came out, and before giving the crowd a blessing, humbly asked for a blessing from the people. This break with protocol reminds us that before He began His ministry, Jesus humbly asked John to baptize Him.

On Holy Thursday, instead of washing cardinals' feet at St. Peter's Basilica, Pope Francis celebrated Mass at a juvenile prison, where he washed 12 inmates' feet, two of them women, and two of them Muslim. Though the ordained should represent the 12 apostles, the pope's new twist on the ritual highlights the fact that the apostles were just ordinary folks who, after a bad day of fishing, might have needed to steal something to get a bite to eat.

The Vatican's security detail has been flustered by the way Pope Francis throws caution to the wind and spontaneously goes out among the crowds, blessing babies and kissing those with disabilities. These surprising symbolic actions should remind us of Jesus' call to serve "the least" among us, even if it puts us at some risk. May we "preach the Gospel at all times; if necessary, use words."
