FIELD HOUSE DRIVE
GAINS MOMENTUM

Dear Alumnus:

Easter Greetings from the University of Dayton. Now that Lent is over and the March 15 headache is a memory, how about looking ahead to the future? The future for U.D. means many things. With the end of the war the physical education department will continue to increase in importance as a factor in national well-being.

The present gymnasium which has served students for over 70 years is, as we all know, inadequate to meet present needs. A new fieldhouse is an immediate post-war project. A big homing for all students, and especially all of our returning servicemen, will probably have to wait until a few years after the peace is signed. What better place would there be to welcome them than in a new fieldhouse?

Records show that our alumni fighting the war have contributed generously to the campaign. They have learned the value of physical training. How about the alumni at home, coming through with a welcome home gift in the realization of the goal of this campaign? Let us hear from you. Send in your suggestions, pledge, or contribution now.

Cordially yours,
The Field House Committee

We have many returned veterans now registered, and with the end of hostilities will come more. With the war has come increased emphasis on physical fitness, and after the war the physical education department will continue to increase in importance as a factor in national well-being.

Alumnae Support

Dear Father Renneker:

Enclosed is my contribution for the new U.D. Field House. The founding of such a Field House as you, the entire faculty, and Alumni group have in mind is indeed a splendid plan. Without a doubt, it will greatly contribute to the furtherance of such a worthwhile program as that of physical fitness, as well as spiritual fitness and mental fitness which U.D. has always endeavored to impart to its students. It is a program which all educators should strive to give to youth, particularly in times like these.

As I am, at present, a teacher of physical education and health and science in one of the Dayton schools, I can see now, more than ever before, the true meaning of these words, "a healthy mind in a healthy body," and the great value of such courses if our young people are to develop well-integrated personalities and in turn take their places as worthwhile citizens of the United States.

Yours sincerely,
Madeline Georgiev, '43

Letters from the Alumni

'43 Grad Reports

Hello, Brother Lackner:

This will no doubt be a surprise—hearling from me. A lot has happened since April 18, 1943 and I've gotten around quite a bit since then.

After I was commissioned as ensign August 20, 1943, I was stationed in Virginia and Florida in Amphibious training. Last February I shipped out to England on an LST and June 6 saw me at Normandy, France. I had a few near misses but I came out of it without a scratch luckily.

I returned here to the States Dec. 27 and had 30 wonderful days' leave I actually planned on stopping over at Dayton a few days but it was pretty hard leaving home at all after being away a year and a half.

I am now stationed in "sunny" California (it rained the first two days here). This base is not far from (Continued on page 7)
VETERANS TESTING PROGRAM DEVISED

With the increased interest in returned veterans and their readjustment to civilian life has come a keener realization of the importance and value of psychology and the role it must play. It is the duty of the psychologist to aid in every possible way the discharged veteran's return to normal civilian life.

When civilian life means school, as it does to many who are taking advantage of the provisions of the G.I. Bill, the school has the opportunity, and the duty, of helping the veteran make the transition from war to peacetime pursuits. At U.D. a definite veterans' testing program has been set up under the direction of Father Charles Collins, dean, registrar, and doctor of psychology. Bro. George Nagel, liaison officer, Veterans' Administration and the University of Dayton, helps to administer the tests.

Before testing begins the veteran is interviewed as to his occupation before entering the service. The family situation and possibility of further study are discussed. The training in the army or navy, and disabilities, if any, are considered. Finally the interviewer tries to discover what the veteran wants to do.

Tests Important

If the veteran decides to enroll in classes the testing program begins. Various aptitude tests are then given to determine the best course of study. After the course is determined further guidance may be necessary in order to overcome emotional difficulties that hinder adjustment.

Father Collins emphasizes that the psychologist must take many factors into account and not rely altogether on tests. Home surroundings and vocational relationships must be taken into consideration if the veteran is to be understood. One of the first problems the returned soldier faces is to overcome the excitement attending war. The transition of servicemen to civilians confronts modern psychology with its most important immediate problem. "However," Father Collins declares, "the American psychologist has a grasp of the issues at stake, and knows the steps he must take in helping the veteran to make the transition." Father Collins recently returned from a conference of psychologists on aiding war veterans in their return to civilian life held at New York University.

THE VISION TEST MEASURED BY THE TELOBINOCULAR is being taken by former G.I. George Sullivan, freshmen business student from Cambridge, O. Joan Roderer, sophomore science student of Dayton, records results.

SCORING THE TESTS TAKEN BY THE RETURNED VETERANS ON THE INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS MACHINE is Marian Schock, sophomore arts student of Dayton. She operates the I.B.M. as part of her laboratory work in experimental psychology.

TAking THE HEARING TEST ON THE AUDIOMETER is returned veteran Frank Tansey, freshman business student from Toledo. Father Charles Collins, doctor of psychology and head of the veterans' testing program, administers the test.
Bro. Hoffman III
Brother Adam Hofmann, S.M., founder and head of the department of mechanical engineering, was struck down March 5 and is resting in St. Elizabeth's hospital. Brother Adam has been on the U.D. faculty for 44 years and celebrated his golden jubilee in the society in 1942. Students, faculty, and alumni pray for his complete and speedy recovery.

Los Angeles—60 miles, and so I hope to see a lot of movie stars and radio shows before leaving here. I am going to Port Director's school here which will last three months. After that I'll probably see duty in the Pacific somewhere, but this is a good deal while it lasts.

My brother Ray is still at Camp Blanding, Fla., and Paul is now at Washington, D. C. in Naval Communications. I was lucky in seeing both of them as we were all home together New Year's Eve and what a time we had.

I notice I'm getting the ALUMNUS at home now. Would it be possible to change the address so that I can get it here? Paul would like to receive his copy in Washington I think.

Well Brother, drop me a line if you have the time. It will be awfully good hearing from you with the news of dear old U.D.

Very sincerely,
Lt. (j.g.) Joe Jacobs, '43
