U. D. Plans to Enroll 1500 in Fall Term

To accommodate the anticipated increase in enrollment next fall, the administration at the university announced recently that the school day will be lengthened and the teaching staff doubled.

According to present plans, approximately 1,500 students will be accepted for day classes. These will be conducted continuously from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., beginning with the fall term, 1946. Staggered lunch hours will be observed with the school cafeteria remaining open all day.

The new plan, however, will not be a definite double session with one group attending from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m., and the other from 1 p.m., until 6 p.m. In the engineering and science field, there will be some overlapping. Upperclassmen are expected to attend classes during the morning, while in the afternoon attendance for the most part will be limited to freshmen.

Normal pre-war enrollment in the University of Dayton day classes was 750 students. In February, 1946, a new high was established with the enrollment of 950 students. By increasing the teaching staff and lengthening the school day, it is expected that the university will be able to take care of the indicated rise in enrollment.

In announcing the tentative schedule, Father George J. Renneker, S.M., president, said: "Every school has a positive debt to the returned veteran. In this postwar emergency, just as during the war we did our part by serving our country by means of special wartime educational programs, we must go all-out to do our best to supply the educational needs and demands of the men and women who were doing their best for us during the recent conflict."

Veterans will be given preference over all other applicants, and contrary to recent rumors, there will be no limitation on the number of women students admitted.

FRONT COVER: May we present the U.D. Coed Cheerleaders, left to right, Peggy Watkins, Margaret Ashworth, and Shirley Durr. Marking the return of sports activities to the campus, a number of squads of coeds participated in leading the cheers at the basketball games. As a result of this competition, the trio named above was chosen to lead the student body.

513 Alumni Contribute $2356

They say that the first half is the hardest. Whether this will be true or not regarding the collection of Alumni dues remains to be seen. To date we have received contributions from 513 alumni, totaling $2356, which indicates that we are 13 contributors past the half way mark in striving for our “grand”—1,000 membership. A supplementary list of contributors will be published in the May Alumnus. The alumni secretary would like to express a note of appreciation to those who have made returns, and to those who haven’t—how about giving me a little additional work, and let me record your contributions?

ALUMNI INVITED TO MILITARY BALL

The traditional annual Military Ball of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps will be held in the ballroom of the Biltmore Hotel, May 6 from 9:00 to 1:00 a.m. This is the first time in three years that the military ball will be given by the R.O.T.C. as an outgrowth of the reactivation of the advanced military course at U.D. Special events are planned for this traditional social event. In order to give recognition to veterans of the past war, all veterans are invited to wear their service uniforms.

Randy Brooks, his trumpet and his orchestra, straight from a long engagement at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York City, is to furnish the music. Beverly Byrne will supply the vocals. The orchestra will play this engagement while on tour of several colleges including West Point, Georgia Tech, and Virginia Military Institute.

Three Profs Added To U. D. Faculty

Faculty members have been added to the university teaching staff in three departments, psychology, mathematics and mechanical engineering.

Ferdinand Bonan, hailing from New York City, has been added to the University of Dayton faculty to teach in the department of psychology. He has a degree from St. Lawrence University, having majored in psychology and sociology. May we introduce our staff photographer, William J. Greger. “Bill” is a junior in the electrical engineering department, and has been responsible for taking, printing and enlarging most of the pictures used in the Alumnus.

“Bill” is always ready and willing to take photos, and we owe him a vote of “Thanks.” Without his assistance and cooperation, the Alumnus would have been issued minus quite a few pix.

in the sociology department. Recently released from the Army, Mr. Bonan served as a psychologist and occupational counselor.

Robert Donovan, '32, is an instructor in mathematics. He has taken special work in math at Cornell, and was a candidate for a master's degree from Ohio State, when his education was interrupted by the war. Two Flyers Killed Over Jap Islands

Memorial services for Lt. Harold Raybould, '43, mechanical engineer, were held Monday, March 18, at 9:30 a.m., in St. Peter’s Church, Mansfield, Ohio.

Lt. Raybould, a flight engineer aboard a B-29 of the 21st Bomber Command, was reported missing in action after his ship failed to return from a mission over Tokyo on March 10, 1945. After being missing in action for a year, he has now been declared dead by the War Department.

A native of Mansfield, Ohio, Lt. Raybould entered the service in June, 1943, and was commissioned at Yale University in January, 1944. He completed his training at air bases in Great Bend, Kansas and Kearney, Nebraska. Having been sent overseas in December, 1944, he was stationed on Saipan.

His wife, Mrs. Barbara (Kirby) Raybould, is his only survivor.

Another Memorial Mass was held for Capt. Edward P. "Ned" McDermott, '39, at Holy Family Church, Dayton, on Thursday, March 21. He enlisted at Patterson Field, Dayton, in October, 1940, where he served as weather observer. He was sent to the AAF Forecaster’s School at Chanute Field, Ill., and was graduated from there in 1941. President Makes Army Day Address

"The Reserve Officers' Training Corps is an asset to the individual, his school, the community, and the country," said Father George J. Renneker, S.M., president of the University of Dayton at a special Army day luncheon, April 6, at the Biltmore Hotel. The President was one of the principal speakers on the program sponsored by the U. D. military science and tactics department.

Maj. Robert Johnston, professor of military science and tactics at the University of Dayton, introduced Father Renneker.

In outlining the historical background and purpose of the R.O.T.C., Father Renneker said, "An outgrowth of the Students Army Training Corps inaugurated on the U. D. campus during the first World War, the R.O.T.C. has been active on the campus since 1918. The purpose of military science and tactics is to qualify students for leadership in time of emergency and the record of R.O.T.C. students of the university in this past war has been outstanding." Father Renneker pointed out that the leadership of students active in R.O.T.C. also asserts itself when these students are associated with other university activities. In addition to leadership the Reserve Officers' Training Corps also develops such desirable qualities of character as responsibility and respect for lawful authority... I believe that the R.O.T.C. program should be encouraged in its good work, and if needs be, expanded. Its value to the individual himself and to him as part of a family, community and nation has been proven."

Major Johnston New Military Head

Maj. Robert C. Johnston was named professor of military science and tactics at the university. He replaced Maj. Wilfred Free who is retiring from active duty.

A native of Indianapolis, Ind., Maj. Johnston was graduated from Purdue with a degree in chemical engineering. His military service started in 1940 when he entered the field artillery. At Fort Sill, Okla., he served as an instructor for the officer candidate school and also with the 99th infantry division as an instruction unit and battery officer.

In August, 1944, Maj. Johnston was sent overseas, stopping at Oahu, Hawaii. There he aided in making plans for the Tenth Army invasion of Okinawa. He participated in the initial Okinawa invasion at the end of which he was hospitalized. After 13 months' overseas duty he was sent from Okinawa to Guam and then to the United States. Before coming to Dayton, he instructed in the advanced military department at Ohio State University.
Wounded Vet Able To Drive Own Car

Clarence W. Kinzeler, former sergeant, United States Army, and at present a U. D. student under the GI Bill, was seriously wounded by machine gun fire on a Saar valley battleground in December, 1944. He had gone to rescue a patrol and as he crawled back from his assignment, his right hip was shattered by machine gun fire. He was convinced that his automobile driving days were a thing of the past.

On April 5, 1946, Kinzeler took possession of a new Ford car equipped with vacuum-controlled clutch so that he can operate the pedals with one foot. It was the first car with the new equipment delivered to a disabled veteran in the Cincinnati district of the Ford Motor Co.

The special equipment was a gift of the Ford Motor Co., and cost Sgt. Kinzeler nothing. Henry Ford, Sr., has declared that "no man who lost a limb in the armed services of our country during the war is going to have to pay anything extra to drive a Ford automobile." Kinzeler is the first recipient of that generosity in the Dayton area.

Kinzeler was a member of Gen. George D. Patton's Third army, participating in three campaigns, and receiving the Purple Heart and Silver Star decorations.

About a year ago, Kinzeler was returned to this country aboard the Queen Elizabeth. At Fletcher General Hospital, army surgeons built him a new hip socket, but his right leg always will be stiff.

For having undergone such extensive bone repairs, the "Sarge" walks amazingly well. And now he is all smiles that he has a car to drive again!

The Sporting Scene

Athletic Program
In Full Swing

The athletic program at the U is definitely making up for lost time. With the resumption of football, another announcement was made that we would definitely resume intercollegiate baseball this season, and in all probability tennis and golf will be resumed. Plans also call for a revival of track, most probably in 1947.

Baseball practice is under the guidance of "Cyp" Klamo, an experienced candidate for the team. Klamo, former coach at Middletown St. John's high school, also piloted the battalion team from the Third Armored division which went into the semi-finals in the ETO about a year ago.

The first game—a practice tilt—with the Pilsener Pales, was rained out.

The second game of the season was played at Wright Field with the Flyers losing by a score of 7-2.

To break even in their tilts, the Flyers came back to win 10-2 over Miller Brothers in the third game of the season.

Spring football practice began March 18 with over sixty candidates reporting to Coach Harry Baujan at the opening sessions. Plans are being made for a return to the gridiron after a leave of absence for four years.

Most of the grid hopefuls are willing and eager, but so inexperienced. The only letter man on the team is Bill Goss, 225 pounds, a tackle on the 1942 team and a returned veteran. "Tuffy" Brooks, another seasoned veteran, won letters at Indiana and should be one of the team's better backs. Members of the 1942 freshman squad who are anxious to get back into the game are Dick Dahn, Kenny Pitzer, Bart Mariscalco, Ed Toscani, Walt Malley, Nick DiGiacco, Bernard Hickey and Frank Maloney. Don Pinciotti, Joe Accrocco, Lee Schmidt, Milt McGuire, all members of the '42 varsity, are expected back for the fall term.

Coach Baujan and his assistants, Jim Carter and Bill Knisley of the '42 team, have had the candidates grunting and groaning through calisthenics, running scrimmage in preparation for rough scrimmage. Several practice games have already taken place in the stadium.

The 1946 grid schedule is:

- Sept. 28—Canisius at Dayton
- Oct. 5—Miami at Dayton
- Oct. 12—Cincinnati at Dayton
- Oct. 19—Toledo at Toledo

*Oct. 26—W. Reserve at Dayton
- Nov. 3—Xavier at Cincinnati
- Nov. 9—Chattanooga at Dayton
- Nov. 16—Ohio University at Athens
- Nov. 23—Marshall at Dayton
