If you have ever seen Mount Rushmore in South Dakota, you know what an impressive monument it is. Four presidents' faces carved into the side of a mountain. The scale is massive; the noses are over 6 feet tall. Without a doubt, the workers periodically had to step back from the edge of the mountain and evaluate the big picture, making sure that the faces were proportionate, and formed a good composition before they returned to work.

Retreats are an opportunity for us to step back and evaluate the big picture of our lives, and make sure we are moving in a good direction. They are a chance to see grace and majesty at work, and the beauty that God pulls out of us. Retreats take us out of the day-to-day grind of busyness, and immerse us in fun and faith-filled reflection. They allow us to discover God's work in our lives in surprising ways. Students leave retreats and return to their lives rejuvenated and with a new sense of purpose.

Campus Ministry offers dozens of retreats. You might want a weekend filled with people, talks, and small groups. If so, Lighthouse, More to Life, and Metanoia are for you. Looking for a smaller group? Try hiking on the Wilderness retreat, or the contemplative quiet of the Guided retreat. Take a chance, sign up and get away for the weekend. You might be surprised by the beauty you see when you take the time to step back.
