GLOBAL SOLIDARITY

As our world becomes increasingly connected through social media and our intertwined global economy, we should be more aware of how our actions and non-actions may affect fellow humans. What does our faith call us to do?

Catholic Social Teaching guides followers in solidarity with others by helping us to recognize that as members of God's human family, we are dependent on each other and the earth to sustain our precious lives on this planet. Through a spirituality of solidarity, or feeling at one with and responsible to not only the person next to us, but with the one half-way around the world, we can serve out our call to be peacemakers, even in violent and unjust times.

Solidarity begins with learning about each other and taking the time to listen and build relationships with those who are different from us. This learning takes place both in the classroom and through stepping out of our comfort zone and experiencing a new way of life, culturally, religiously, economically, geographically, and so on.

There are some great opportunities for students to learn and practice global solidarity through the Center for Social Concern, including plunges, service clubs, speakers, BreakOuts and summer immersions. Start looking into how these experiences can be worked into your college plans. Longer and more involved trips may take some discernment. Check out our website at www.udayton.edu/ministry/csc for more information. Maybe next year, you will find yourself meeting members of this great human family in India, Zambia, Cameroon, or Latin America.
