Mary Jo O'Callaghan, 6811 Bramble avenue, Cincinnati, a senior in arts at the University of Dayton, has been awarded a coveted Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship.

Through the fellowship program, which recruits and supports promising scholars for their first year of graduate study, Miss O'Callaghan will enter the State University of Iowa in September for work in English.

One of 1,200 "superior American and Canadian students" named Wilson Fellows, she was selected from some 7,000 candidates in 700 undergraduate colleges.

The Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Foundation, backed by a $25 million grant from the Ford Foundation, awards a living allowance of $1,500 plus the full cost of tuition and fees to each of the students selected for the program.

Miss O'Callaghan, one of the top students at U.D., is consistently on the Dean's List; is editor of the campus literary magazine, The Exponent; and active in the University Players, Marianist Sodality, choir and Writers' Club.

She is a 1955 graduate of McNicholas High School in Cincinnati.
