2000

Author Identifications

Follow this and additional works at: http://ecommons.udayton.edu/bcca

Part of the Higher Education Commons, Interpersonal and Small Group Communication Commons, Mass Communication Commons, Other Communication Commons, and the Speech and Rhetorical Studies Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: http://ecommons.udayton.edu/bcca/vol12/iss1/13

This Back Matter is brought to you for free and open access by the Department of Communication at eCommons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Basic Communication Course Annual by an authorized editor of eCommons. For more information, please contact frice1@udayton.edu, msclangen1@udayton.edu.
Author Identifications

Susan Bissett (M.A., Central Michigan University) is the Assistant Director of Student Life at the University of Charleston where she continues her research interests in student leadership.

Nancy L. Buerkel-Rothfuss (Ph.D., Michigan State University) is Professor of Communication at Central Michigan University. She has authored numerous book chapters and journal articles on family communication. She also pioneered the well-known graduate teaching assistant training program at Central Michigan University.

Christy L. Carson is a student in the Department of Communication at Illinois State University. Her research interests include organizational and interpersonal communication.

Tamara Golish (M.A., North Dakota State University) is completing her Ph.D. at the University of Nebraska and is an Assistant Professor at Luther College. Her research interests include the basic communication course, interpersonal communication, and intercultural communication.

Mark A. Gring (Ph.D., The Ohio State University) is a Visiting Assistant Professor of Communication at Southwestern University, Georgetown, Texas. He is the former Director of the Fundamentals of Public Speaking at Mississippi State University. His research interests include the application of rhetorical theory to public speaking pedagogy and the rhetorical analysis of Latin American religious discourse that advocates revolution.

Jennifer M. Heisler (M.A., Central Michigan University) is currently a doctoral student at Michigan State University where she is the Basic Course Coordinator.

Katherine G. Hendrix (Ph.D., University of Washington) is an Assistant Professor at the University of Memphis where she has served as the Director of the Basic Course for the past four years. Her professional experience included community college teaching and administration as well as university teaching. The socialization process for graduate teaching assistants and professor credibility are her primary research interests.

Karla J. Huffman is an instructor in the Department of Communication at Illinois State University where she teaches the basic course and serves as an administrator of the speech lab. Her research interests include the mass media’s portrayal of A.I.D.S.

Jera W. Littlejohn (D.B.A. in Management, Mississippi State University) is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Communication at Mississippi State University. Her interests are in team building and small group communication, business communication, and writing development. She recently applied these interests as a faculty leader for the Women As Leaders Seminar at the Washington Center, Washington, D.C.

Deanna Sellnow (Ph.D., University of North Dakota) is an Associate Professor of Communication at North Dakota State University. She is Director of the Public Speaking Fundamentals Program, and teaches courses in college pedagogy, rhetoric, and popular culture. Her research interests include the basic communication course, communication pedagogy, gender, and the rhetorical processes of music.

Cheri J. Simonds (Ph.D., University of Oklahoma) is an Assistant Professor and Director of the Basic Course at Illinois State University. She has co-authored a book on classroom communication and has published articles on teacher clarity and challenge behavior in the college classroom. Her major research interests include issues related to the basic course and instructional communication.

B. Scott Titsworth (M.A., Southwest Missouri State University) is currently a Ph.D. candidate and Associate Basic Course Director at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

David W. Worley (Ph.D., Southern Illinois University) is an Assistant Professor of Communication at Indiana State where he serves as the Director of the Basic Course.