FOR RELEASE SATURDAY, AUG. 18, 1962.

DAYTON, O., Aug. 17.--A native of Cleveland who since 1930 has been with the American Steel and Wire division of the U.S. Steel Corp. in Cleveland will begin teaching at the University of Dayton next month.

University President Father Raymond A. Roesch said Dr. C. Richard Horwedel, 59, assistant manager of AS & W's stainless products division, will join the faculty with the opening of the University's 113th academic year next month.

Dr. Horwedel is an alumnus of UD where he received his bachelor's degree in chemical engineering in 1924. His master's degree is from the University of Alabama and he has his doctorate from the Ohio State University.

The metallurgical engineer, who resides in Rocky River, will be an assistant professor of industrial engineering at UD, Father Roesch said.
