Art and poetry will be the topics of two special evening programs to begin at the University of Dayton later this month.

English Prof. Robert B. O'Donnell will present eight lectures on "Enjoying Modern Poetry" on Wednesday evenings from Sept. 28 through Nov. 14. American and British poets and their works will be covered during the 7:35 to 9:35 p.m. weekly program in Wohlleben Hall.

The development of art in Western culture will be covered in eight Tuesday evening sessions beginning Sept. 25 by Prof. Edward Burroughs, dean of the School of the Dayton Art Institute and chairman of U.D.'s department of art. The several periods of Western culture will be studied through a discussion of each's age's art and artists. These lectures also will be given in Wohlleben Hall during the 7:35 to 9:35 p.m. hours.
