What is your story?

You are a part of University of Dayton's rich history. Your story — and the items you kept from your time here — have enduring value in the University Archives.

Were you in a campus club or on an athletic team? Did you witness an event or attend a concert on campus? Did you study abroad or go on a mission trip?

Your experiences can be preserved and shared in meaningful ways through:

- Photographs: originals, copies, scans or digital
- Postcards
- Maps
- Organizational newsletters and scrapbooks
- Posters and flyers
- Memorabilia
- Mementos or other items from religious celebrations on campus
- Letters, playbills, programs and event keepsakes

With every donated collection, University Archives will:

- Review your material
- Create an inventory so your item or collection can be easily discovered and used
- Follow best practices to preserve physical and digital materials
- Where appropriate, promote collections through our website and use them in classes, online exhibits and/or public events

Donations ensure your story is shared with future generations. Contact University Archives at 937-229-4256 or archives@udayton.edu to get started.
