Confessions of a Sorority Woman: Impacts of Hazing on New Members of Panhellenic Greek Lettered Organizations

Kaci E. Durham
University of Dayton, stander@udayton.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://ecommons.udayton.edu/stander_posters

Part of the Arts and Humanities Commons, Business Commons, Education Commons, Engineering Commons, Life Sciences Commons, Medicine and Health Sciences Commons, Physical Sciences and Mathematics Commons, and the Social and Behavioral Sciences Commons

Recommended Citation

http://ecommons.udayton.edu/stander_posters/698
Abstract
The purpose of this study was to examine how Panhellenic Greek lettered organizations might choose to haze their new members and how being hazed impacted a new member, physically and mentally. Participants responded to a web-based survey that asked individuals to identify what they believed constitutes hazing, hazing acts they have been asked to engage in, and outcomes of joining a Panhellenic organization. Both new members and initiated members received the survey. For data analysis, participant responses were compared using Independent Sample T-Tests. New members of Panhellenic Greek-lettered organizations defined organizational unity and mental/emotional instability as an outcome of joining a Panhellenic organization.

Methods
• Panhellenic Members and New Members
• Proportional Stratified Sampling
• Web Based Survey
• Independent Sample T-Tests

Research Questions
How are Panhellenic Greek lettered organizations hazing their new members?
What is the psychological and physical impact of being hazed on a new member of a Panhellenic Greek lettered organization?

Future Directions
• This research will lead to an understanding of what type of hazing is happening in Panhellenic organizations and how it is impacting new members. This research will also lead to curbed hazing practices at institutions, as Greek practitioners now have an understanding of hazing practices of Panhellenic women at Midsize, Private institutions.
• In order to make this research more accurate, it would be best to open the web-based survey to Panhellenic women at multiple Midwest, Private institutions.
• In order to make this research more accurate, it would be best to have at least half of the respondents be from women who have been initiated within the last year (new members).

Findings
Frequencies
Frequency tables showed that 31% of New Members have been asked to engage in hazing activities that include: forced alcohol consumption, public humiliation, sleep deprivation, wearing specific clothing, performing chores for initiated members and limiting associations with those who are unaffiliated.

Statistically significant findings
Independent Sample T-Tests showed statistical significance between new members and their belief that it is hazing if initiated members force them to participate in drinking games. Statistical significance was also found between initiated members belief that it is hazing for them to maintain a minimum Grade Point Average.

Selected References
• Hollmann, B. (2002). Hazing: Hidden campus crime. New Directions for Student Services, (99), 11-23

Acknowledgements
I would like to say a huge thank you to Nasser, Michele and Molly for all of their challenge and support during the past two years. A huge thank you also goes out to my mother – I would not have made it through graduate school without you. Also, thank you to my fiancé for putting up with my hectic work schedule and always encouraging me to pursue my dreams. Finally, much love to the #sixpack – you made graduate school worth it!