Team-Building

03.07.2011 | Education  Bruce Tulgan, author of It's Okay to Be the Boss and It's Okay to MANAGE Your Boss, will discuss "Becoming the Manager Your Employees Deserve" 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday, March 16, during the University of Dayton Center for Leadership and Executive Development's Executive Development series.

Similar themes highlight three CLED Supervisor/Professional Series events in March: "Effective Decision Making" 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 22; "Servant Leadership" 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Thursday, March 24; and "Building Teams that Work" 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Tuesday, March 29.

The cost to attend a one-day Executive Development program is $995 for the general public, $945 for University of Dayton alumni and $870 for CLED partners.

The cost for a Supervisor/Professional Series program is $395 for each session for the general public, $345 for University of Dayton alumni and $290 for CLED partners.

For the first time this year, both programs presented by the University of Dayton Center for Leadership & Executive Development are open to the general public.

All sessions will be at the 1700 South Patterson Building, formerly the NCR Corp. world headquarters. For a complete schedule, list of speakers and session topics or to register, call 937-229-3115 or visit the related link.

Program topics are based on the critical business and leadership needs identified annually by executives in the Dayton region and include employee engagement, developing high potential leaders, creating passionate organizations and strategic innovation, among others.

Speakers include educators from Harvard Business School, the University of Pennsylvania Wharton School's Leadership Program, Dartmouth's Tuck School and the Weatherhead School at Case Western. Others are top leadership thought leaders and best-selling business book authors, including, David Maxfield (Change Anything), Joseph Pine (Welcome to the Experience Economy) and Barry Posner (The Leadership Challenge). University of Dayton faculty and local business leaders also teach courses.
