

THE EVOLVING THOUGHT AND VISION OF REV. DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING JR.

Alyssa Cacini, Katherine Sullivan, Maddalena Boyer, Madeline Nagy
Advisor: Cassandra Secrease

The monument was erected in November of 2015. It was named “Give Us This Day Our Daily Quest” in honor of the everyday quest Dr. King journeyed to bring justice to all those oppressed in America. In a religious sense, this can be related to “Give us This Day Our Daily Bread.”

The chair with the suit coat and Bible not only represents Dr. King, but also anyone who visits the memorial. It should be used as a springboard to bring issues forward. It was created so anyone who stepped foot on campus can recognize the history that had taken place.

MLK Monument at UD

The team initially planned for it to be a statue, but Brother Gary explained there were already so many statues around campus. He wanted to do something different. “I wanted a monument that was simple, yet elegant,” he stated, it allowed for the building of the bench, a place of reflection and rest.

