DAYTON, Ohio, December 20, 1966 — Mary Jo Warth of Madison, New Jersey, an April, 1966, graduate of the University of Dayton, is one of 10 journalists who has received a $2,000 graduate fellowship to the Washington Journalism Center in Washington, D.C.

This is the second group of 10 who will receive this 16-week graduate course in the new Center, which opened in September. The Fellows, who begin their studies on February 1 next year, come from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York, Virginia, Rhode Island, Oregon, Texas and Washington, D.C.

The group will participate in a series of seminars and internships to provide in-depth training in the reporting and editing of national and international news.

Lecturers at the Center include Eric Sevareid of CBS News, Drew Pearson, Julius Frandsen, Vice President of U.P.I., editors from leading eastern newspapers, Time Magazine and George Gallup of the American Institute of Public Opinion. Leading public officials also lecture during the 16 weeks.

The Fellows also will participate in internships with the CBS News, The Associated Press, and the Congressional Quarterly.

Miss Warth, who writes both for the Morristown, N.J., Record, and Paterson, N.J., Call, was assistant editor of the Flyer News, the University of Dayton's student newspaper, during the 1965-66 school year. She contributed articles to the Exponent, student literary magazine.
