The art work of David Lewis Smith, local artist and teacher is currently being displayed in the gallery and lounge of the John F. Kennedy Memorial Union at the University of Dayton. Included in the exhibit are drawings, oils and watercolors depicting life on the local scene.

A draftsman with a Romanticist's attachment to particulars, Mr. Smith's work highlights Dayton--the skyline from Interstate 75, Monument Avenue, the elegant and the makeshift; the late Montgomery County Jail; and the grit and smoke of the industrial city.

Mr. Smith has studied at the Dayton Art Institute, Miami University, and the State University of Iowa. He is teaching art at Fairmont West and is president of the Dayton Society of Painters and Sculptors. He has exhibited at the Cincinnati Art Museum, The Houston Museum of Fine Arts, The Dayton Art Institute, and presently his work can be seen at the Salem Gallery, Tahara; l'Atelier in Dayton and at Clossons in Cincinnati.
