DAYTON, Ohio, July 6, 1967 — Rev. Joseph H. Zeinz, professor of the classics at the University of Dayton, has been elected Director of the Service Bureau for Teachers of the American Classical League. The election occurred at the League's meeting at Western College for Women, Oxford, Ohio, according to Dr. Norman T. Pratt of Indiana University, president of the League.

In this capacity, Father Zeinz, who has just returned from a two-week study institute of Latin at Minnesota University, will be responsible for overseeing the revision and preparation of materials used by Latin and Greek teachers throughout the country.

The League is a nonprofit organization composed of teachers and friends of the classics at all levels of education. It was founded in 1919 and has 6,000 members.
