DAYTON, Ohio, April 17, 1969 --- Mr. Kenneth Davenport, Foreign Students Advisor at the University of Dayton, has been selected to attend the Faculty Advisors Institute at the United Nations in New York April 23 through 25. The invitation came from Arthur J. Goldberg, Chairman of the Board of the United Nations Association of the United States of America and is under the sponsorship of the Council on International Relations and United Nations Affairs (CIRUNA), the university affiliate of UNAUSA.

The Institute will be designed to explore the Middle Crisis in depth. This subject was chosen because of the prime importance it holds in the world today. Permanent Representatives to the United Nations from Jordan, Tunisia, France, Israel, United States, Southern Yemen, the Soviet Union and the United Kingdom will discuss the crisis during the conference's three days.

Goldberg, in his letter to the selectees, said "Because of the promising new developments in strengthening responsible student participation in international affairs, a portion of the Institute will also be devoted to the discussion of the relationship of the faculty advisor to international affairs programming on the college campuses."
