DAYTON, Ohio, February 28, 1972 — Final payment of $10,000 of a $20,000 grant made in 1970 by the ESSO Education Foundation has been made to the University of Dayton for its three-year New Horizons Fund. The grant, which was applied to the new Eugene W. Kettering Engineering & Research Laboratories, was announced by Dr. Frederick deW. Bolman, Executive Director of the ESSO Education Foundation in New York.

The Foundation's final payment was made under its grants to 201 colleges, universities and higher education associations, which totals $1,076,000. These grants were made under four of the Foundation's 1971-72 programs which include Engineering & Science, Presidential Contingency, Special Assistance, and Capital. Total Foundation grants for the academic year are expected to exceed $3.5 million.

Reverend Raymond A. Roesch's response to the payment said in part: "...Gifts of this magnitude take on added meaning during this period of financial uncertainty. We earnestly hope the knowledge that your contribution will be especially productive in enabling us to realize the fruit of earlier progress more fully will serve as the most meaningful expression our heartfelt appreciation."

The grant brings to $64,900 the amount of the ESSO Education Foundation have awarded the University since the 1956 capital fund campaign.
