DAYTON, Ohio, April 4, 1972 --- The School of Education at the University of Dayton is sponsoring a series of seven workshops this summer, six of which are at the University, while the other is to be in Europe. Some of the courses are for graduates, and others are for both graduates and undergraduates. Many of the programs are aimed at local teachers and administrators in the local community.

The workshops cover a wide range of educational topics including learning disabilities, students rights and responsibilities, business systems and data processing, individualized instruction, catholic education and curriculum enrichment through study abroad.

The first course is "Learning Disabilities," a graduate course worth three credit hours, which runs from June 19 to July 7. Teachers, principals, counselors and school psychologists will be given the opportunity to participate in the diagnosis and remediation of learning problems experienced by children in grades kindergarten through 8. The workshop is being directed by Dr. Thomas Campanelle, Professor of Counselor Education, University of Dayton, and Sr. Marilyn Dietz, R.S.M., Principal, Queen of Martyrs Elementary School, Dayton.

"Legal and Personal Aspects of Student's Rights and Responsibilities" will run from June 26 to July 10. The co-directors are Dr. James E. Gay, Assistant Professor, Secondary Education, University of Dayton, and Dr. Ellis Joseph, Chairman, Department of Secondary Education, U.D.

In this workshop, two graduate or undergraduate credit hours will be given and participants will be made aware of the legal and personal aspects of students rights and responsibilities. The laws dealing with corporal punishment, expulsion, suspension, discipline, curriculum choice, etc., will be treated. Participants will be given the opportunity to formulate policies which are in accordance with current laws. Participants also will be given an opportunity to learn how to be lay advocates through the utilization of the resources of the Center for the Study of Student's Citizenship, Rights and Responsibilities located in Dayton.

The third workshop, "Dimensions of Individualized Instruction," will be held from June 26 to June 30 under the direction of Mr. Dan West, former Principal, Hithergreen Middle School, Centerville, and Mr. Frank DePaola, Assistant Principal, Tower Heights Middle School, Centerville. The two major emphasis will be on the use of unipacs and the relationship between team teaching and individualized instruction. Designed especially for Middle School Teachers, the workshop carries two graduate or undergraduate credit hours.

"Business Systems and Data Processing: A Career Oriented Approach," is under the direction of Mr. Robert Kriegbaum, Associate Professor of Business Education, and Dr. Ellis Joseph, Chairman, Department of Secondary Education, U.D., and will run from July 6 to July 27, and carries three graduate credit hours. The purpose is to familiarize the teacher and administrator with data processing techniques and -more-examples and methods of incorporating this material into classroom teaching procedures. In addition, participants will be given a thorough introduction to what is meant by a career oriented approach which business education teachers must understand if they are to function in a manner consonant with national trends.

"Reflections on Catholic Education" is a "Mini-Course" rather than a workshop. It will examine past purposes and policies of Catholic Education in the light of the Catholic experience in American Society--and will then go on to suggest new purposes and policies in the light of the changing cultural milieu. The director for the course will be Dr. John Geiger, Department of Foundations of Education, U.D. The one credit hour course for both graduates and undergraduates will run from July 10 to July 14.

Sr. M. Carmencita Voisard, C.PP.S., Community Coordinator of Education, C.PP.S. will present "New Direction in Catholic Education" from July 17 to July 28, for two graduate credit hours. The workshop will focus on possible new directions for Catholic elementary schools in organization, administration, public relations, counseling and instruction. The more promising current innovations will also be studied and evaluated.

The final program is "Curriculum Enrichment Through Study Abroad" under the co-direction of Dr. John O'Donnell, Chairman School Administration, U.D., and Dr. Audrey Bourgeois, Chairman, Foundations of Education, U.D. This is a two graduate credit hour course intended primarily for teachers and administrators. It is also open on a non-credit basis for others who might derive benefit from such an experience. Participants will visit seven European countries (Holland, Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, and England) for the purpose of gaining first-hand knowledge of geography, history, culture, economic and social conditions as background for curriculum enrichment.
