DAYTON, Ohio, February 7, 1972 — Urban planning, new towns, and social services are some of the areas that the University of Dayton's Second Urban Affairs Study Tour are going to study in Europe this spring. The learning experience will consist of seminars by professionals in the areas indicated, and on-the-spot observation by students. This is the "see, hear, and investigate on-the-site" approach which makes learning especially relevant, according to Dr. Mary Jo Huth, Co-director of the tour.

Students will have a chance to study in Amsterdam, Paris, Rome, Vienna, Stockholm, Copenhagen, and London, and inquire into such services as day care facilities, youth programs, centers for the aged, and health and welfare programs. Special significance is given the tour in light of the Federal Government's 1971 policy decision to construct 100 new towns in the United States in the next 30 years, using European models and approaches for treating our nation's urban problems.

Students on the tour will leave April 27. The tour terminates June 16, but those students who wish to remain in Europe may do so for a year after the departure date without incurring any additional air fare. The entire cost per student will be $1,400, and will include lodging, two meals per day and transoceanic and continental transportation. Upon completion of the tour, students will be eligible for twelve hours of academic credit in the fields of Sociology, Anthropology, and Social Work.
