PERSPECTIVES OF MINISTRY
EXPLORED AT UD

DAYTON, Ohio, April 8, 1982 — The University of Dayton MORES Center for Creative Ministry, together with the Miami Valley Episcopal Council, is sponsoring "A Day With John Westerhoff," April 24 from 9:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. in Miriam Hall 121.

John Westerhoff is an Episcopal priest associate at the Chapel of the Cross and professor of practical theology at the Duke University Divinity School. He has taught at Harvard and Fordham universities, Boston College, the University of the South, and Princeton and Union Theological seminaries. In addition to lecturing throughout the world, Westerhoff is the author of numerous books and articles and editor of Religious Education, an international, ecumenical, scholarly journal.

The program is designed for volunteer lay workers in Christian education and provides interaction with others involved in similar work. Theological and theoretical perspectives of ministry will be presented during the keynote address by Westerhoff, group discussions, and a question and answer period.

The workshop fee is $3 and includes lunch. For more information and registration, call 229-4327.
