OUTSTANDING TEACHERS RECEIVE AWARDS

DAYTON, Ohio, May 9, 1983 -- The University of Dayton and the Western Ohio Education Association (WOEA), in cooperation with the Dayton Newspapers, Inc., presented Outstanding Teacher Awards to Doris Swabb and Marge Mott. The awards were received May 3, 1983.

Swabb, who received the award in the elementary education category, is a sixth-grade teacher at Beavertown Elementary School in Kettering. She has headed the safety patrol for three years and in 1981 was voted Outstanding Elementary Social Studies Teacher in the State of Ohio. She holds a master's degree from Miami University. Swabb lives in Kettering with her husband and four children.

Mott, who received the award in the secondary education category, teaches learning disabled students at West Carrollton High School. She received a master's degree from UD and is a member of the Red Cross Disaster Action team in West Carrollton. Mott resides in West Carrollton with her husband and three children.

Both teachers will receive $250 and a plaque for their accomplishments. Selection criteria included success in the classroom, professional activities, community involvement, and the endorsement of colleagues.

The awards ceremony, held in the University of Dayton Kennedy Union, was hosted by Ellis Joseph, Dean of the UD School of Education. Donald Stephan of the Western Ohio Education Association was a program speaker.
