UD HOSTS DAYTON
LEADERSHIP WORKSHOP

DAYTON, Ohio, May 13, 1983 -- The University of Dayton in cooperation with Wright State University and Sinclair Community College will host a Dayton Leadership Workshop on May 18, 1983. The workshop, for high school students, is sponsored by the school's military science departments.

The one day workshop is designed to help students learn to work together and become effective, capable leaders. They will participate in sessions on character development, group dynamics, and the theory and concepts of leadership. The participants will also learn how to organize and conduct meetings.

Twenty-two students and five counselors from area high schools will attend the workshop from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. in UD's Kennedy Union. The high school participants are elected student government representatives chosen by their schools for this project.

The University of Dayton, Wright State University, and Sinclair Community College have joint military science departments and work cooperatively on education and community projects. For more information, contact Major Randy Tucker at 229-3326.
