UD TO SPONSOR TOPIC IN HORTICULTURE

DAYTON, Ohio, March 27, 1985 -- A comprehensive course for home gardeners, "Topic in Horticulture," will be held at the University of Dayton's John F. Kennedy Memorial Union from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on five consecutive Tuesdays, beginning April 9. The course will be taught by Marvin Olinsky, director of the Cox Arboretum, and will include sessions on soil analysis and preparation, rose and fruit tree cultivation, and vegetable gardening and preserving.

Marvin Olinsky, known as "The Plant Doctor," is a nationally-recognized horticulturist, arboretum and public garden designer, and author. His presentations will provide beginners with information on how to initiate a successful home garden and landscape design, and provide lawn renovation gardeners with solutions to difficult garden problems and ways to re-design older gardens or to begin new landscape projects. Whether gardeners are maintaining an established garden or landscaping a new property, the course will provide them with up-to-the-minute information on horticultural methods and materials.

The comprehensive course fee is $40, and it is also possible to register for individual sessions at $10 each. To register, or for more information, contact UD's Office of Continuing Education at 229-2251.
