CAREER DAY HIGHLIGHTS
BLACK HISTORY MONTH AT UD

News Release

DAYTON, Ohio, February 17, 1987--The University of Dayton Office of Minority Affairs and Career Placement Center are sponsoring a Career Day on Saturday, February 28. "Our Future Is So Bright We've Got to Wear Shades" is the theme for the program, which begins at 10:30 a.m. in the Kennedy Union Ballroom. Admission for the public is $6.50, which includes the luncheon.

The program is for high school and college students, professionals considering a career change, and anyone interested in the current job market and trends in different professional areas.

A variety of professionals, many of whom are UD graduates, will be on hand to conduct round-table discussions on their respective career fields. Topics will include communications, law, education, business, engineering, entrepreneuring, and social services.

The program will begin with a keynote speech by UD alumnus John E. Moore, Sr., an expert in personnel management and human relations. Moore has held a series of executive civilian positions with the Air Force and retired in 1976 from the position of Civilian Personnel chief at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base. Following the luncheon, UD President Brother Raymond L. Fitz, S.M., will give a presentation on academic success and professional goals.

A fashion show will feature ideas for career dressing and offer tips on maintaining a professional image. The program will conclude with practice interviews and evaluations conducted by UD Career Placement Center staff.

To register, call UD's Office of Minority Affairs by February 25 at 229-3634.
