UD PROFESSOR ELECTED PRESIDENT OF NATIONAL ORGANIZATION

DAYTON, Ohio, November 6, 1987--Sister Angela Ann Zukowski, M.H.S.H., executive director of the University of Dayton's Center for Religious Telecommunications and assistant professor of religious studies at UD, has been elected president of Unda-USA, the National Catholic Association for Communicators. She will serve a three-year term for Unda-USA, which is part of Unda-World, the International Catholic Association for Radio and Television. Zukowski has served as first vice president of Unda-USA since 1984.

Zukowski has worked with archdiocesan religious education offices and has produced and hosted television programs. She has authored numerous books and publications on topics such as religious education, the changing family, television and family, and Christian responsibility. In addition to her telecommunications work, she has been involved in adult religious education, ministry for the handicapped, and ministry for Hispanics.

As the director of UD's Center for Religious Telecommunications, Zukowski leads the University's efforts to link advances in telecommunications with the everyday needs of the Catholic Church. The Center was established in 1983 by the Society of Mary to explore the impact of telecommunications on education, cultures, and faith communities and to assist the Church and academic community in using the new technologies effectively.
