DAYTON, Ohio, May 2, 1988--Andrew Douglas, associate justice of the Ohio Supreme Court, will give the commencement address for the University of Dayton School of Law on Sunday, May 15.

The School of Law will award 105 Juris Doctorate (J.D.) degrees during the ceremony, which begins at 2 p.m. at the University of Dayton Arena. The graduating class consists of 34 women and 71 men.

Douglas, who will discuss "Law and Lawyers -- The Future" in his address, was elected to the Supreme Court in 1984. Prior to his election, he was an assistant professor at the University of Toledo Community and Technical College, where he lectured on business organizations and consumer law. Douglas served as a judge in the Sixth District Court of Appeals for three years and was a practicing attorney for 20 years.

From 1961 to 1980, Douglas was a Toledo City councilman. He also served as a special counsel to the Attorney General of Ohio. A graduate of both the University of Toledo undergraduate school and the College of Law, Douglas holds a Doctor of Jurisprudence degree. He is a member of the Toledo, Lucas County and Ohio state bar associations.

Weekend graduation activities include a Mass in UD's Immaculate Conception Chapel on Saturday, May 14 at 4:30 p.m. A reception for graduates and their families will follow the commencement exercises on Sunday.
