APPLICATION DEADLINE EXTENDED FOR UD WOMEN IN ENGINEERING PROGRAM

DAYTON, Ohio, June 8, 1988--The deadline for application to the Women in Engineering Program at the University of Dayton has been extended to June 24.

The program is an event-filled career awareness week designed to encourage young women to choose engineering or engineering technology as careers. High school sophomore and junior girls with an interest in math or science, especially minorities, are encouraged to apply for the five-day program, to be held July 10-15 on campus.

Events during the program will allow young women to learn about college admissions, financial aid, types of engineering degrees, career opportunities for women and salary ranges. An industry roundtable will give students an opportunity to talk to women engineers about career options, demands and expectations.

Approximately 100 girls from around the country will be accepted to participate in the Women in Engineering Program. Cost is $195. For more information or registration materials, contact Dorothy J. Hitchcock or Jean Steele at 229-4632.
