DAYTON, Ohio, June 9, 1988--Brother Raymond L. Fitz, S.M., president of the University of Dayton, has been appointed to serve as a member of the Commission on Financing Higher Education of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities (NAICU).

The commission recommends policy positions on issues affecting the financing of higher education. "It's a very important issue for us as a nation to develop a policy that will help us to obtain educational excellence in our country, now and in the future, to meet the challenges of international competition," said Fitz.

The commission is composed of independent college presidents, representatives of state associations of independent colleges and experts in the fields of financial aid, enrollment, and college admissions. It reports to the association's board of directors.

NAICU is a nonprofit association founded in 1976 as the national voice of independent higher education. It initiates and supports public policies that advance the mission and promote the well-being of the independent (private) sector of higher education.

The University of Dayton is the largest independent university in Ohio and the ninth largest Catholic university in the nation.
