DAYTON, Ohio, January 26, 1989--College students and adults interested in traveling this summer can combine education and sightseeing by participating in the University of Dayton's Overseas 1989 program.

"Each course is site specific," said Brother Paul Bredestege, S.M., director of UD's Interdepartmental Summer Studies Abroad Program (ISSAP). "The instructors use the resources at each location to develop the courses, and the cultural immersion is the most appealing to the students. They learn so much about the art, music and history once they're in Paris or Madrid or another city."

Language programs, interdepartmental and specialized studies, and cultural excursions are all included in the Overseas 1989 program. College credit will be awarded for all but one of the trips sponsored by UD. All courses, which last from two to six weeks, are taught by UD professors, most of whom have worked and lived overseas. To earn credit, participants must be at least 18 years old and be qualified to enroll at UD or be students in good standing at another university.

"Viennese Music Sampler," led by UD music lecturer George Zimmerman and UD language lecturer Ed Hatch, is the one session that does not offer college credit. Planned for May 14-28, the sojourn will feature the Viennese Music Festival, lectures on the musical life of Vienna and a wide variety of musical performances. A four-day stay in Prague is planned.
