APRIL 7: UD FACULTY MEMBERS DISCUSS THIRD WORLD DEBT POLICIES

The final Friday afternoon faculty discussion at the University of Dayton will be held on Friday, April 7 at 3 p.m. in the staff dining room of the Kennedy Union on campus. "What Should U.S. Policy Be Toward Third World Debt" will be discussed by Carlos Colon, assistant professor of economics and finance; Antonio Lapitan, professor of political science; and Bruce Taylor, associate professor of history.

The session will include brief remarks by the panel members, followed by an informal discussion open to all those attending. For further information, contact Pam Huber at (513) 229-3241.

APRIL 7: RETIRING UD PROVOST BROTHER JOSEPH STANDER TO BE SALUTED BY FACULTY

More than 600 University of Dayton faculty members and professional researchers will salute Brother Joseph Stander, S.M., at a farewell dinner on Friday, April 7 at the Dayton Convention Center. Stander is retiring this summer as vice president for academic affairs and provost of UD, a position he has held since 1974. A social hour will be held from 6 to 7 p.m., followed by dinner.

A mathematician as well as the University's chief academic officer, Stander was instrumental in initiating UD's Honors Program, a rigorous academic program for exceptional students that was established in 1978. The entire UD community will recognize his service with a reception in his honor in June. Stander intends to return to teaching mathematics at UD next January.

APRIL 8: BLACK LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM WILL MEET AT UD

The 35 participants in the 1988-89 Black Leadership Development Program will meet at the University of Dayton on Saturday, April 8 from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of the Virginia W. Kettering Residence Hall. Saturday's session will focus on "Human Relations" and will include discussion about different aspects of human relations.

Organized by the Dayton Urban League, the Black Leadership Development Program is a seven-month course that includes participants from UD, Mead Corporation, NCR, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, General Motors and Wright State University, among others. Participants meet twice a month at various locations. Graduation for the 1988-89 program will be held April 29.
