DAYTON, Ohio, November 16, 1973 -- (3:30 P.M.) - The Ohio Board of Regents today issued a Certificate of Authorization for the reopening of the University of Dayton Law School in September, 1974.

The Regents met this afternoon in their monthly meeting at Cleveland State University, Cleveland.

The resolution approving the Certificate reads as follows:

WHEREAS, the Ohio Board of Regents in accordance with authority of Chapter 1713 of the Ohio Revised Code, in resolutions of September 13, 1968 and October 19, 1973, issued a Certificate of Authorization to the University of Dayton for award of Baccalaureate and Masters Degrees, and Doctoral Degrees in Biology and Engineering, and

WHEREAS, the University of Dayton now requests modification of existing Certificate to award the Juris Doctor degree, and

WHEREAS, the University is fully accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, is working closely with the appropriate professional accrediting bodies in development of the Juris Doctor degree, and has demonstrated resources which meet standards established by the Board of Regents for award of Certificates of Authorization.

Now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED: by the Ohio Board of Regents that the Certificate of Authorization earlier awarded to the University of Dayton be modified to include the Juris Doctor degree.

The University has received approval from its Board of Trustees to reopen the school and Rev. Raymond A. Roesch, S.M., University President, has appointed William Hoben, Dean, UD's School of Business Administration, Chairman of a committee to seek a dean for the Law School.
