DAYTON AREA HIGH SCHOOL
MODEL UNITED NATIONS PLANNED

DAYTON, OHIO, September 17, 1979 --- The Dayton Junior Council on World Affairs (JCOWA) and the University of Dayton will be co-sponsoring the 1979 Dayton area High School Model United Nations. The conference will take place on Friday evening, November 16, and all day Saturday, November 17.

Students participating in the conference represent specific countries in caucus and debate, drafting resolutions and dealing with many diverse and challenging international issues. Because there will be five U.N. bodies simulated, schools can send several delegates to the conference.

Topics to be addressed cover a broad range of current issues. Disarmament and Israeli practices in the occupied territories will be discussed by the Political and Security Committee. The Economic and Financial Committee will concern itself with World Economic Development and Energy. The problems of refugees will be addressed by the Social, Humanitarian and Cultural Committee, while the Security Council will consider questions on the legitimacy of Zimbabwe Rhodesian government, the Middle East, and South Africa's apartheid policies. The World Food Council will present a working paper to the General Assembly on the consequences of increasing energy costs in world food production, particularly in the developing countries.

The committee sessions are designed to encourage debate and the passage of resolutions. The conference will close with a General Assembly Plenary session
