1992-93 UD ARTS SERIES INCLUDES VAN CLIBURN MEDALIST AND DCDC

Season tickets go on sale Tuesday, Sept. 8. Tickets, which are $50, may be ordered by contacting the UD Arts Series, University of Dayton, Dayton, Ohio, 45469-0619. Please include a self-addressed envelope with 58 cents postage with each order.

The six events scheduled for 1992-93, the 31st season of the Arts Series, begin with a performance by Gregg Goldston and his mime troupe, the Invisible People. The troupe will perform at 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 24, and Friday, Sept. 25, in UD's Boll Theatre. John Giffin, director of the dance program at Ohio State University, will perform with the troupe.

The Dayton Contemporary Dance Company will give two performances this season. Season ticket holders can choose to attend one of the two performances given at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 4, or Sunday, Feb. 7, in the Victoria Theatre.

"Song of the Soul," the third Arts Series event, will be performed by LiveOak and Company, an ensemble specializing in early Spanish music, at 8 p.m. Monday, Oct. 26, in UD's Boll Theatre. LiveOak and Company recreates music from the complex Spanish, Moslem and Jewish culture found on the Iberian peninsula between 1150 and 1500.

Alexander Shartkman, who placed fourth in the most recent Van Cliburn competition, will perform at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 11, in Boll Theatre. A native of Russia, the 22-year-old pianist plays with sensitivity and refinement while still displaying the passion and eagerness of youth.

Li-Young Lee, contemporary American poet and author of Rose and The City in Which I Love You, will read from his works at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 10, in UD's Boll Theatre. Lee will also be giving a public workshop on Tuesday, Feb. 9. Winner of the Whiting Foundation's writer's award, Lee was the subject of one episode of Bill Moyers' "The Power of the Word" PBS series, and he is acclaimed for the soothing, spiritual nature of his poetry.

The Brockbort Quartet, a group of talented musicians from the Indiana University School of Music, will premiere at UD's Boll Theatre in March. The quartet, consisting of violinists Michael Jinsoo Sim and Sasha Margolis, violist Melia Watras and cellist Elizabeth Simkin, will perform pieces by Bela Bartok, George Gershwin and Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart.
