Organizations can be chaotic with ineffective leadership.
Organizations run more smoothly with effective leadership
Skills Alone ≠ Leadership

Formation Alone ≠ Leadership

Skills + Formation = Leadership for Successful Catholic Schools
"Just as your car runs more smoothly and requires less energy to go faster and farther when the wheels are in perfect alignment, you perform better when your thoughts, feelings, emotions, goals, and values are in balance."

Leadership & Change

• Important task for most leaders is to be able to facilitate organizational change

• Typically the status quo is not good enough

• Continuous improvement coupled with high accountability have become the way of doing business today
In order to successfully lead change there are several factors that need to be taken into consideration.
Leading Change

Douglas B. Reeves (2009) suggests that to lead change you need to consider four things:

• Create conditions for change
• Plan for change
• Implement change
• Sustain change

Reeves, 2009
Conditions for Change

According to Ely (1990) there need to be proper conditions for change to occur:

• Dissatisfaction with status quo
• Sufficient knowledge and skills
• Availability of resources
• Availability of time
Conditions for Change

- Reward or incentives
- Participation
- Commitment
- Leadership

Leadership must consider all of these factors!

Ely, 1990

1. Love your employees
2. Connect peers with purpose
3. Build capacity
4. Learning is the work
5. Transparency
6. Systems can learn

Fullan, 2013
Key Lessons

Fullan (1993) also indicates that there are several lessons to be learned from change:

• You can’t mandate what matters
• Change is a journey
• Problems are our friends
• Vision and strategic planning come later
• Individualism and collectivism must have equal power

Fullan, 2013
Key Lessons

More lessons to be learned from change...

• Neither centralization nor decentralization works in isolation ... need both

• Must connect with the wider environment

• Every person is and must be a change agent

Fullan, 2013
