Nov 8th, 3:30 PM

The Socialization of Human Rights as an Inroad to Protect Sacred Space

Leonard Hammer
Hebrew University of Jerusalem, hammer.leonard@gmail.com

Follow this and additional works at: http://ecommons.udayton.edu/human_rights

Part of the Human Rights Law Commons, International Humanitarian Law Commons, International Law Commons, Law and Society Commons, and the Religion Law Commons

http://ecommons.udayton.edu/human_rights/2017/reimaginingrights/4

This Event is brought to you for free and open access by the Human Rights Center at eCommons. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Social Practice of Human Rights: Charting the Frontiers of Research and Advocacy by an authorized administrator of eCommons. For more information, please contact frice1@udayton.edu, mschlangen1@udayton.edu.
The Social Practice of Human Rights:
Charting the Frontiers of Research and Advocacy

2017 Conference of the University of Dayton Human Rights Center
Nov. 8-10, 2017, Dayton, Ohio
For the archive of the conference, see http://ecommons.udayton.edu/human_rights/2017/

Research Panel: Re-Imagining Rights

Presenter: Leonard Hammer, Hebrew University of Jerusalem and University of Arizona

Title: The Socialization of Human Rights as an Inroad to Protect Sacred Space

Abstract:

Serious problems exist for cultural heritage protection, and these problems are even more serious when accounting for the protection of sacred space and holy places. The lack of effectiveness of the majority of existing international norms and institutions will be reviewed in this paper, which shall then turn to potential sources for entrenching protection of scared space within states.

The paper shall rely on the human right to freedom of religion or belief as the basis for upholding sacred space given an emerging broader understanding of the right within the human rights framework.

The paper shall principally focus on the means by which the human right to freedom of religion or belief can be better entrenched within a social landscape by accounting for what has been termed the socialization of human rights. The notion is that as a human right like the freedom of religion or belief becomes enmeshed within society, the grounds for protection can improve, leading to a more effective manner of protection for sacred space.

About the presenter:

Leonard Hammer, senior lecturer at Rothberg International School, Hebrew University, and visiting professor at University of Arizona, has expertise in international law and international human rights. His research addresses holy place protection and sacred space issues.